Women and men in decision-making: methodology

European Institute for Gender Equality

The European Institute for Gender Equality (EIGE) is an autonomous body of the European Union established to strengthen gender equality across the EU. Equality between women and men is a fundamental value of the EU and EIGE's task is to make this a reality in Europe and beyond. This includes becoming a European knowledge centre on gender equality issues, supporting gender mainstreaming in all EU and Member State policies and fighting discrimination based on sex.

1. Introduction

The Gender Statistics Database \(GSD\) of the European Institute for Gender Equality (EIGE) contains a wide range of statistics from all over the European Union (EU) and beyond. For the most part, the database brings together statistics collected by other institutions and aims to provide a central access point for anyone interested in data with a gender dimension.

In January 2017, EIGE took over the database on women and men in decision-making (WMID), which was previously managed by the European Commission. The WMID database was launched in 2003 to monitor the numbers of men and women in key decision-making positions to provide reliable statistics that can be used to draw comparisons between European countries and analyse the current situation and trends through time. Statistics on women and men in decision-making provide a key element to assess the implementation of Area G of the Beijing Platform for Action, 'Women in Power and Decision-making', a commitment from the Council of the European Union.

All the statistics on decision-making are now integrated into the 'Women and men in decision-making' entry point of the EIGE's Gender Statistics Database, and can also be accessed from other relevant sections of the database.

Statistics on the numbers of women and men in positions of power and influence are collected for the following domains:

- politics
- public administration
- judiciary
- business and finance
- social partners and NGOs
- environment and climate change
- media

- science and research
- sports

Data may cover international, European, national, regional and local levels. The geographic coverage has been expanded through time. Currently data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidate countries (including Montenegro, North Macedonia, Albania, Serbia and Turkey), two potential candidates (Bosnia and Herzegovina and Kosovo (*)) and the remaining three EEA countries (Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway).

Data are updated quarterly for political decision-making at European and national level, biannually for largest listed companies and annually for most other topics (!). Political data at regional level are updated annually except when there has been an election (data for affected regions are updated in the next quarterly collection), and data on local level politics and national social partner organisations are updated every other year. Generally, data are disseminated within one month of the data collection.

Data collected by EIGE on Women and Men in Decision-Making Database for the EU candidate countries and potential candidates have been funded by the European Commission under the Instrument of Pre-Accession Assistance (IPA).

This document presents the methodology for the collection of data on decision-making, and provides information on the coverage (countries, organisations and decision-making positions), definitions applied, and methods of collection for each topic. It starts with general definitions and then presents detailed information for each domain.

(*) This designation is without prejudice to positions on status, and is in line with UNSCR 1244/1999 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo declaration of independence.

(!) Quarterly data collection periods are referred to as Q1, Q2, Q3, and Q4; biannual data collection periods are referred to as B1 and B2.

1.1. Coverage

Data may cover international, European, national, regional and local levels. The geographic coverage has been expanded through time. Currently data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidate countries (including Montenegro, North Macedonia, Albania, Serbia and Turkey), two potential candidates (Bosnia and Herzegovina and Kosovo) and the remaining three EEA countries (Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway).

See topic specific sections for diversions on coverage.

1.2. General definitions

1.2.1. Decision-making position

A decision-making position is a position from which it is possible to take or influence a decision:

- within a domain: at organisational level. This restricts coverage to organisations having a major influence in the domain at the territorial level of interest, which is usually national but can also be international, European, regional or local;
- within an organisation: at hierarchical level. This restricts coverage to positions within the hierarchy that have a major input to decision-making within the organisation.

The positions covered are specific to each area of decision-making and are described in detail in each topic specific section.

1.2.2. Statistical unit and population

The statistical unit in WMID data is the organisational unit as defined by each specific topic (e.g. a house of parliament or a large listed company). Data are then collected on the numbers of men and women occupying decision-making positions within that unit.

See topic specific sections for details on organisations and positions covered.

1.2.3. Unit of measure

The unit of measure is number of persons and percentages.

1.3. Release policy and frequency of dissemination

Data are updated quarterly for political decision-making at European and national level, biannually for largest listed companies and annually for most other topics. Political data at regional level are updated annually except when there has been an election (data for affected regions are updated in the next quarterly collection), and data on local level politics and national social partner organisations are updated every other year. Generally, data are disseminated within one month of the data collection to all types of users simultaneously via the EIGE Gender Statistics Database \(GSD\).

See topic specific sections for details on the data collection schedule.

1.4. Data quality and relevance

1.4.1. Quality assurance

WMID data are collected either directly from the organisations covered or from umbrella organisations providing data on behalf of member organisations. The majority of data are collected from the websites or other publications produced by the organisations concerned but some are also collected from direct contacts. There are three main risks in the data collection: ensuring the right decision-making bodies and positions are identified; ensuring that the gender of the people in these positions is correctly recorded; and ensuring that the information is up-to-date.

The data are collected by a team of experienced researchers and are subject to routine validation that includes:

- cross-checking of data relating to at least 10 % of organisations covered (randomly selected) by another researcher;
- verification of data with the organisation concerned, where necessary;
- comparison of data with previous periods and review in case of significant change.

To learn more about the quality assurance of the Gender Statistics Database, see: Quality Considerations for EIGE's Gender Statistics Database.

1.4.2. Completeness

WMID data are comprehensive (cover all relevant organisations) and complete (data are available for all relevant positions in each organisation covered) in the vast majority of cases, although the completeness of data depends on the extent to which the organisations covered openly publish, or are willing to share, information about their key decision-making personnel. In general, there is increasing pressure on organisations of all types to be completely transparent about their organisational structure and operational practices so that completeness of the data has improved through time.

See topic specific sections for details on data completeness.

1.4.3. Accuracy

In principle, the WMID data accurately describe the situation for the area of decision-making concerned, though in some areas the coverage of organisations is restricted to limit the cost and burden of the data collection, and this could potentially impact on overall accuracy.

See topic specific sections for details on data accuracy.

1.5. Comparability and coherence

1.5.1. Geographic comparability

WMID data are considered comparable between countries but it is necessary to bear in mind the different institutional settings that exist and the fact that decision-making structures vary between organisations within countries as well as between countries. There are, therefore, inherent differences between countries in the way that decision-making is organised but the WMID methodology aims to allow for such variation so that the organisations and positions covered in each country are as comparable as possible.

See topic specific sections for details on geographic comparability.

1.5.2. Comparability over time

In general, WMID data are comparable through time in each area of decision-making. Nevertheless, it is necessary to bear in mind that the organisations covered and the decision-making structures within these may vary through time (e.g. ministries may be reorganised following a change of government, and the constituents of the blue-chip indices used to define the sample of large listed companies are updated by the responsible stock exchange on a regular basis).

See topic specific sections for details on comparability over time.

1.5.3. Coherence

In general, there are few other sources of data on decision-making against which to assess the coherence of WMID data. Some national data exist for selected areas of decision-making but often the methodology is not the same (i.e. the coverage of organisations and/or positions within these varies) so that direct comparison is not possible.

Internal coherence of the data (e.g. through time or across countries) is ensured through careful application of the WMID methodology and routine validation of data.

See topic specific sections for details on coherence with other datasets.

1.6. Data revision

There is no fixed revision schedule and any necessary revisions are made on an ad hoc basis. For example, a response to a request to verify the information collected for a particular organisation is received after the data collection has closed and the results were disseminated. If the information leads to a change in the data, then the update is made at the next available opportunity and at the latest within one month.

See topic specific sections for details on revisions of data.

1.7. Statistical processing

1.7.1. Source of data and data collection

The WMID data are a form of administrative data derived from the records that organisations keep regarding the personnel occupying key positions within the organisation. In all areas of decision-making, data cover all organisations within the scope defined by the methodology. In some areas (e.g. national level politics) all relevant organisations/bodies are covered (e.g. parliaments and governments) whilst in others the methodology restricts coverage so that the data effectively represent a sample of organisations within the specific area (e.g. data on decision-making in largest listed companies are restricted to the nationally registered constituents of the main blue-chip index for the country).

Data are directly collected from official websites, direct contact or other sources.

See topic specific sections for details on source of data and data collection.

1.7.2. Data compilation

Data collected from individual organisations are aggregated by position to the national or organisational level, where relevant.

EU-27 figures are based on an aggregate of data at national level, with the percentages of men and women calculated from these aggregates. The shares of men and women observed at the EU level are therefore weighted averages rather than an average of the shares at country level.

For data on organisations at the EU and international levels, total figures are based on an aggregate of data at organisational level, with the percentages of men and women calculated from these aggregates. The total shares of men and women are therefore weighted averages rather than an average of the shares at organisational level.

2. Politics

2.1. Parliaments and assemblies

2.1.1. European Parliament

2.1.1.1. Organisations covered	The European Parliament is a legislative parliament, exercising powers similar to those of the national parliaments. Today, the European Parliament, as an equal partner with the Council of Ministers, passes the majority of European laws that affect the lives of Europe's citizens.
2.1.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: elected President of the European Parliament. • Members: members of the European Parliament (MEPs) (count includes the president). NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • MEPs are elected in the 27 EU Member States and seats are allocated based on the population of each country. • Data show breakdown by country.
2.1.1.3. Reference area	Not applicable.
2.1.1.4. Time coverage	WMID data on the European Parliament were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003. The dataset also includes data collected in 1999 in the context of work undertaken by the Council of the European Union to monitor the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action.
2.1.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on a quarterly basis, typically as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Q1: February/March • Q2: May • Q3: July/August • Q4: October/November
2.1.1.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
2.1.1.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
2.1.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.1.1.9. Comparability across countries	Seats are allocated based on the population of each Member State and therefore the number of members by country will vary. After departure of the UK, seats were redistributed amongst the remaining 27 EU Member States in February 2020. Apart from this point, data are comparable between countries.
2.1.1.10. Comparability over time	There are variations in the number of members of the European Parliament (MEPs) due to changes in the EU membership. The main changes are as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Elections June 2004: due to the accession of 10 new countries in the European Union (), the number of MEPs increased from 626 to 732. • January 2007: the number of MEPs temporarily increased to 785 after the accession of Bulgaria and Romania. • Elections June 2009: the number of seats was reduced to 736. • December 2009: 18 seats were added temporarily to reach 754. • July 2013: with accession of Croatia, the number of MEPs temporarily increased to 766. • Elections July 2014: 751 MEPs were elected, in line with the maximum number of seats set by the Lisbon Treaty (750 MEPs + President). • February 2020: with the departure of the UK, the number of MEPs reduced from 751 to 705 (704 MEPs + President). () Czechia, Estonia, Cyprus, Latvia, Lithuania, Hungary, Malta, Poland, Slovenia and Slovakia. There are small variations between these periods due to temporary vacant seats following resignations of members.

2.1.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	The official website of the institution publishes the distribution of women and men in the opening sessions of each parliamentary term (see here). However, data are not presented in absolute numbers (only the share by gender are shown), and do not reflect the variations between elections nor the current composition.
2.1.1.12. Data revision	None.
2.1.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from the official website.
2.1.1.14. Mapping tables	None.

2.1.2. National parliaments

2.1.2.1. Organisations covered	The national parliament is the national legislative assembly. In a bicameral system, the parliament consists of two chambers or houses – a lower house and an upper house. In a unicameral system, there is just a single house of parliament.
2.1.2.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: speaker/leader of the house. • Members: members of parliament (count includes the president).
2.1.2.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
2.1.2.4. Time coverage	WMID data on national parliaments were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003 (for 26 countries) and then on a quarterly basis from the 2nd quarter of 2004 (the only gap in the series is the 3rd quarter of 2007). The geographic coverage has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2004Q4 • Lithuania: 2004Q4 • Malta: 2004Q4 • Poland: 2004Q4 • Turkey: 2005Q4 • Croatia: 2007Q1 • North Macedonia: 2007Q4 • Serbia: 2007Q4 • Montenegro: 2015Q1 • Albania: 2018Q3 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018Q3 • Kosovo: 2018Q3 In addition, for the EU-15 Member States only, the dataset includes data collected in 1999 in the context of work undertaken by the Council of the European Union to monitor the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action.
2.1.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on a quarterly basis, typically as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Q1: February/March • Q2: May • Q3: July/August • Q4: October/November
2.1.2.6. Completeness	Data are complete.

2.1.2.7. Accuracy	For the following cases, parliament(s) dissolved at the time of data collection hence data from the last period was used: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018Q4 data (upper and lower houses of parliament) refer to 2018Q3. • Spain: 2019Q2 data (upper and lower houses of parliament) refer to 2019Q1. • UK: 2019Q4 data (lower house of parliament) refers to 2019Q3. • Ireland: 2020Q2 data (upper house) refers to 2020Q1. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully accurate.
2.1.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.1.2.9. Comparability across countries	The major difference between countries is that some have a unicameral system with just one house of parliament whilst others have a bicameral system with two houses. The data are organised by type of house so that this difference can be taken into account. Apart from this point, data are fully comparable between countries.
2.1.2.10. Comparability over time	There is generally little change through time, other than an occasional change in the size of the parliament. For example, the number of members of the unicameral National Assembly of Hungary was reduced from 386 to 199 in 2014. The only structural change that has occurred over the period for which data are available (2003 onwards) is that Norway dissolved the Lagting (upper house) and Odelsting (lower house) in 2009 and replaced them with a single house of parliament known as the Storting.
2.1.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	In the case of national parliaments, the Inter-Parliamentary Union collects data on the numbers of men and women in parliaments across the world (see here). However, the IPU data mostly refer to the situation at the last election and are not kept up-to-date in case a person elected does not take up their seat or in case of mid-term changes of personnel, both of which can sometimes make a significant difference to the gender balance. The WMID data and IPU data will be coherent in cases where the WMID data were collected immediately after an election but otherwise the WMID data are more timely and accurate. The IPU data are also disseminated by the World Bank in their databank of gender statistics.
2.1.2.12. Data revision	The following revisions were applied in the specified period: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2017Q3: 2014Q3–2017Q2 data for members in the single/lower house of parliament in Hungary revised. • 2019Q2: 2017Q3–2018Q4 data for members in the single/lower house of parliament in France revised. • 2019Q4: 2019Q3 data for the upper house of the parliament in Belgium revised. • 2020Q1: 2018Q3–2019Q4 data for the single/lower house of parliament in Czechia and Italy revised. • 2020Q2: 2019Q3–2020Q1 data for president of the upper house in Netherlands revised. • 2020Q4: 2020Q1–2020Q3 data for president of the upper house in Spain and 2019Q4–2020Q3 data for members of the lower house in Poland revised.
2.1.2.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites.
2.1.2.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • National parliaments

2.1.3. Parliamentary bureaus

2.1.3.1. Organisations covered	The body forming the decisional and operative structure around the Speaker of the parliament ('board' or the 'presidium'). In a bicameral system, the parliament consists of two chambers or houses – a lower house and an upper house. In a unicameral system, there is just a single house of parliament. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In the single/lower house of Ireland, Hungary, Malta and both houses in Czechia, a permanent/standing committee chaired by the speaker acting as the bureau equivalent are covered. • In the single/lower house of Slovakia and the upper house in Ireland and Slovenia there is neither a bureau nor a standing committee fulfilling this role. In these cases, the president and vice-president(s) are counted as bureau equivalent.
2.1.3.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: chairperson of the bureau (the speaker). • Members: members of the bureau or equivalent (count includes the president (the speaker)).
2.1.3.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
2.1.3.4. Time coverage	WMID data on parliamentary bureaus were first collected in August-October 2017 for the 27 EU Member States and United Kingdom. The geographic coverage has been expanded to align with other WMID topics, so data were collected in August 2018 for the countries listed below only: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Montenegro • North Macedonia • Albania • Serbia • Turkey • Bosnia and Herzegovina • Kosovo • Iceland • Liechtenstein • Norway
2.1.3.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in August/September.
2.1.3.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
2.1.3.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
2.1.3.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.1.3.9. Comparability across countries	A parliamentary bureau does not exist in all countries. In some cases, the permanent/standing committee acting as bureau equivalent is covered whilst in others only the speaker and the deputy speaker(s) is counted. Apart from this point, data are fully comparable between countries.
2.1.3.10. Comparability over time	There is generally little change through time, thus the comparability of data over time is considered good.
2.1.3.11. Coherence with other datasets	In the case of parliamentary bureaus, there is no other dataset compiling the number of women and men in decision-making positions over time.
2.1.3.12. Data revision	None.
2.1.3.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact persons.
2.1.3.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Parliamentary bureaus

2.1.4. Parliamentary committees

2.1.4.1. Organisations covered	Permanent and standing committees formed to work throughout the legislative period in national parliaments. In a bicameral system, the parliament consists of two chambers or houses – a lower house and an upper house. In a unicameral system, there is just a single house of parliament. Data are available broken down by BEIS typology (Basic, Economy, Infrastructure and Socio-cultural functions within the government). NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Only permanent and standing parliamentary committees are included in the data collection. Other bodies (e.g. working bodies or equivalent) with functions and composition not clearly defined in the rules of procedure of parliaments (or other legal document) are excluded. • Permanent and standing committees acting as parliamentary bureau equivalent (covered under the parliamentary bureaus dataset of WMID) are not covered. • Subcommittees, temporary/ad-hoc, and special committees are excluded. • Only members with voting rights are included in the counting.
2.1.4.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: chairperson of the parliamentary committee. • Members: members of the parliamentary committee (count includes the president).
2.1.4.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
2.1.4.4. Time coverage	WMID data on parliamentary committees were first collected in August-October 2017 for 27 EU Member States and United Kingdom. The geographic coverage has been expanded to align with other WMID topics, so data were collected in August 2018 for the countries listed below only: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Montenegro • North Macedonia • Albania • Serbia • Turkey • Bosnia and Herzegovina • Kosovo • Iceland • Liechtenstein • Norway
2.1.4.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in August/September.
2.1.4.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete.
2.1.4.7. Accuracy	2019 data for 14 of the 16 committees (6 in the lower house, 2 in the upper house and 6 joint) in Bosnia and Herzegovina refers to 2018 as the new compositions were not available following recent election. Apart from this, data can be considered fully accurate.
2.1.4.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.1.4.9. Comparability across countries	The major difference between countries is that some have a unicameral system with just one house of parliament whilst others have a bicameral system with two houses. Data are organised by type of house so that this difference can be taken into account. Also, the number of organisations covered varies across countries. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully comparable between countries.
2.1.4.10. Comparability over time	There may be changes in the number of organisations covered by country i.e. following amendments to the rules of procedure or legislative elections. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
2.1.4.11. Coherence with other datasets	In the case of parliamentary committees, there is no other dataset compiling the number of women and men in decision-making positions over time.
2.1.4.12. Data revision	None.

2.1.4.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact persons.
2.1.4.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Parliamentary committees: Single/lower house • Parliamentary committees: Upper house • Parliamentary committees: Joint Committees

2.1.5. Regional assemblies

2.1.5.1. Organisations covered	Regional assemblies: the representative assembly of a region (i.e. regional authority) which is composed of popularly elected representatives of constituent self-governing regions. Note that the different terms used in each country – e.g. regional parliament, regional council and regional assembly – are all treated as being equivalent. The term region refers to regional authorities that are endowed with self-government. Regional authorities are territorial authorities between the central government and local authorities. This does not necessarily imply a hierarchical relationship between regional and local authorities. Regional self-government denotes the legal competence and the ability of regional authorities, within the limits of the constitution and the law, to regulate and manage a share of public affairs under their own responsibility, in the interests of the regional population and in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity.
2.1.5.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President. • Members (count includes the president).
2.1.5.3. Reference area	Currently, there are no regional authorities in 13 () of the 38 countries covered in the WMID data. Thus, only 23 countries are covered. () BG, EE, IE, CY, LT, LU, MT, SI, ME, MK, XK, IS, LI
2.1.5.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in 2003 (for 20 countries), where applicable. Since then, data have been collected on an annual basis and updated quarterly in case of regional elections. The geographic coverage has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2004 • Greece: 2004 • Latvia: 2004 • Poland: 2004 • Slovakia: 2004 • Turkey: 2005 • Croatia: 2007 • Serbia: 2008 • Albania: 2018 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018
2.1.5.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis in the last quarter of the year, generally between October and November. In addition, data are updated quarterly where there have been regional elections. In such cases, typically, data are collected as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Q1: February/March • Q2: May • Q3: July/August
2.1.5.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete but there are gaps due to data availability in some years.

2.1.5.7. Accuracy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Spain (Catalunya): 2017 data refer to 2016 as the regional government and parliament were suspended from October 2017-June 2018. • UK (Northern Ireland): 2017-2019 data refer to 2016 as the devolved government resigned in January 2017 and not re-formed until January 2020. • Turkey (Diyarbakir): 2019-2020 data refer to 2018 as the assembly is under administration at the time of data collection. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully accurate.
2.1.5.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.1.5.9. Comparability across countries	Regions refer to the regional authorities between the level of national and local government (though hierarchical control is not implied) which are endowed with self-government and are therefore not applicable in all countries. Currently 13 () of the 38 countries covered in the WMID data do not have regions following this definition. In addition, the heterogeneity of national systems implies that there are differences in the competences, power, financial resources, and average size of regional authorities across the countries covered in the database. () BG, EE, IE, CY, LT, LU, MT, SI, ME, MK, XK, IS, LI
2.1.5.10. Comparability over time	The number of regions covered across years may vary due to changes in administrative landscaping (i.e. mergers or divisions of existing regions), reforms in the regional governance system, or methodological revisions. These changes have an impact on the comparability of data over time. Following changes in administrative landscaping and legal reforms, the number of regions covered in the WMID data changed for the countries listed below: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Denmark: The Danish Municipal reform abolished the 14 traditional counties (administrative regions) and replaced them with 5 large regions in 2007. • Greece: The legal reform passed in 2010 (with changes implemented in 2011), abolished the 54 prefectures (main regional administrative unit) and replaced them with 13 administrative regions, mainly responsible for dealing with regional development and economic policy. • France: The territorial reform passed in 2014 (with changes implemented in January 2016) reduced the number of regions from 27 to 18 by merging some areas and granting them more competences. The number of assembly members increased depending on the size of the region. • Latvia: The administrative territorial reform implemented in July 2009 changed the administrative divisions from two-level municipalities (i.e. first level: districts and second level: towns, cities, parishes and towns countryside territories) to one-level municipalities, abolished the 33 districts and replaced them with 5 planning regions. • Finland: The coverage dropped from 20 to 19 in 2011 following the merger of two regions (Itä-uudenmaa and Uusimaa). • Sweden: The coverage increased from 20 to 21 in 2011 as the municipality of Gotland was granted the powers of regional self-government. • Turkey: The legal reform passed in 2012 (with changes implemented in 2014) abolished the special provincial administrations of 30 provinces and replaced them with 30 metropolitan municipalities (16 of which were already in place and had local government powers, and 14 newly created) by extending their authority and granting them the same level of power as the regional government. Following the reform, there are now 30 metropolitan municipalities and 51 provinces with regional government powers (was 81 provinces before the reform). • Norway: following the administrative reform passed in 2017 (with changes implemented progressively), the number of regions covered dropped from 19 to 18 in 2018 and from 18 to 11 in 2020.

	Furthermore, there were changes in the number of regions covered in the WMID data for the countries listed below following methodological revisions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Bulgaria: The 9 provinces covered from 2003 to 2006 (administrative units) were excluded from the data in 2007. There is no regional self-government in Bulgaria. • Ireland: The counties covered from 2003 to 2006 were excluded from the data in 2007. There is no regional self-government in Ireland. • France: Number of regions covered increased from 26 to 27 in 2014 with the inclusion of Mayotte (which became an outermost region of the EU). • Portugal: In addition to the two autonomous regions currently covered, other administrative areas were covered in 2003-2006 but these administrative areas were excluded from 2007. • United Kingdom: 9 ceremonial counties in England were covered between 2003-2005. The coverage for the United Kingdom was revised in 2006 to include only the 4 regional authorities (Greater London Authority, Northern Ireland, Scotland, and Wales).
2.1.5.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
2.1.5.12. Data revision	The following revisions were applied: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2016: 2014 and 2015 data for Mayotte in France was added. • 2020: 2019 data for members of regional assembly for Lezhë in Albania added (previously not available).
2.1.5.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites.
2.1.5.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Regions: coverage and NUTS correspondence • Regions by country • Regional executive and assembly: decision-making body

2.1.6. Local/municipal councils

2.1.6.1. Organisations covered	Local councils: the representative assembly of a municipality, city or town. The local political level is taken to be the lowest administrative subdivision with self-government and the associated political, administrative, and fiscal powers that have an elected representative body. In most countries, this is the municipality. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Where the decision-making power in diverse areas (education, tax collection, etc.) is split between several local authorities, all these authorities are included. For instance, many parts of England have two tiers of local government (county councils and district, borough or city councils) while other parts have just one tier of local government (unitary authorities) providing all the local services. All these are covered by the data. The same approach is applied in large cities.
2.1.6.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Mayor or other council leader. In general, municipal councils are led by the mayor. However, in cases where the position of mayor is largely ceremonial with no real political power, the leader of the council is counted instead. • Members of the local/municipal council (councillors). Count includes the mayor/leader. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ceremonial positions are not taken into account as WMID data focus on elected positions. • City councillors are elected by universal suffrage in the majority of European countries, whereas mayors may be elected directly by citizens or appointed by the council. For example, in Luxembourg mayors are nominated by the Grand-Duke from among the elected members of the municipal council.

2.1.6.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Data for Cyprus cover municipalities in the Turkish controlled territory. The ‘displaced’ authorities maintain their legal status, but their mayors and councils have temporarily been displaced to the government-controlled area, as have the vast majority of their constituents. These municipalities are not included in the data for Turkey (i.e. there is no double counting).
2.1.6.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in 2011 for 34 countries. The geographic coverage has expanded through time. For Montenegro, the time series starts in 2015 whilst for Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina and Kosovo, it starts in 2019.
2.1.6.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data were collected on a biennial basis (every two years) up to 2019, typically between March and July. Since 2020, data are collected on an annual basis.
2.1.6.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete although there are some gaps: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Romania: data on members are not available for 2011-2015. Slovakia: data on members are not available for 2011 and 2013. Austria: data on members for 2011-2015 cover only municipalities in five Federal States. Germany: partial data available in most cases: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2011 data cover municipalities in five Federal States for mayors and seven for councillors; 2013 & 2015 data cover municipalities in six Federal States for mayors and seven for councillors; 2017 data for mayors and councillors cover municipalities in nine Federal States; and 2019 & 2020 data for mayors cover the municipalities in eleven Federal States and ten for councillors.
2.1.6.7. Accuracy	In some cases, the only data available refer to the latest election results and thus might not reflect the actual composition of municipal councils and share of women among mayors at the time of data collection. In addition, within the same country data may refer to different dates (e.g. for the UK, often data for England refers to latest available election results, whilst for Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland data refer to the situation as of date of collection). In some countries, local elections do not take place at the same time in all areas (e.g. Germany and Austria). For Slovakia, the distribution of councillors and mayors by gender is an estimation based on gender-specific properties of the surnames of elected representatives.
2.1.6.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.1.6.9. Comparability across countries	There is heterogeneity of national systems of local governance. There are differences in the competences, power, financial resources, and average size of municipalities and other local authorities across European countries covered. The differences in size and number of municipalities results in heavy weighting of the EU-27 and all countries aggregates by few countries. The lowest administrative units do not always correspond to the lowest level of self-government. In some cases (e.g. Portugal and Turkey), there are two systems of local government in place depending on the size of the municipality, but only the larger level is taken into account because this is the administrative unit with real decision-making power. In most cases, capital and/or large cities in European countries have a different status than smaller/middle sized cities and hold more competences. However, there is variation in how these are treated depending on the governance system. For example, in Croatia, the City of Zagreb has the status of both a city and a county, and holds the competencies of both local and regional authorities. Members of Zagreb city district councils and local committee councils are covered in data for members of local councils, but presidents are not counted in data for mayors/leaders (these are included in the WMID data on regional politics). In other cases, like the Czechia or Austria, the capital city has the status of a region and is therefore not included in the data on local councils (included in the regional politics topic).

2.1.6.10. Comparability over time	In the case of local/municipal councils, there are often changes in the number of local administrative divisions (and consequently to the number of local/municipal councils) due to mergers or divisions of municipalities, or reforms in the local governance system. Changes in the number of municipalities in some countries (e.g. Spain, France, and Romania) are frequent and do not have a significant impact on the data. The changes outlined below are considered to have an impact on the comparability of data over time: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ireland: Following the introduction of the Local Government Reform Act 2014, the number of local authorities was reduced from 114 to 31, as 80 town councils were replaced by municipal districts (which are not considered as local authorities) and three city/county councils merged. • Austria: In 2015, a reform in the state of Styria reduced the number of municipalities from 542 to 287, bringing the total number of municipalities in the country from 2,354 down to 2,100. • United Kingdom: The number of local authorities in Northern Ireland was reduced from 26 to 11 following a legal reform in 2014. • Turkey: Following the implementation of a reform on local government in 2014, the number of municipalities was reduced from just under 3,000 to 1,367. The municipalities with metropolitan status (covered in regional data) are not included in the data on local councils from 2015. • Sweden: In the 2014 elections (covered by 2015 data), the maximum number of councillors per municipality was reduced from 30 to 20 and one municipality had two elected mayors. • Estonia: following the 2017 administrative reform, the number of local authorities were reduced from 213 to 79 (including 64 rural municipalities and 15 cities). • Norway: following the 2014 administrative reform (with changes implemented from 2020), the number of local authorities reduced from 428 to 356. Other issues that affect the comparability of data over time are listed below: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Lithuania: the 2015 election results were invalidated in three municipalities due to violation of law. Hence, data for 2015 cover 57 of the 60 municipalities. • Slovakia: 2015 data for mayors exclude municipalities where there were no elections, no candidates, or where candidates received the same number of votes (15 out of 2,926 municipalities). 2015 data for councillors exclude the three municipalities in which elections did not take place. • United Kingdom: 2011 and 2013 data for mayors include directly elected mayors, leaders and deputy leaders, as data broken down by position were not available. From 2015, data on mayors include only directly elected mayors/leaders of the councils. It should be noted that the comparability of the EU-27 figure (data aggregated for the 27 EU Member States) over time will be affected by changes to data availability.
2.1.6.11. Coherence with other datasets	The United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) compiles data on the numbers of men and women councillors in Europe from official national sources. However, UNECE data are compiled annually and do not reflect the current government composition in some cases or cover a different level of local government, which might explain differences with the WMID data. In addition, only councillors are counted and data on mayors are not collected.

2.1.6.12. Data revision	Due to the low frequency of data collection (biennial basis), data on local councils for previous years may be subject to revisions. This may include cases where results of elections of the reference year are made available after the data collection period, or if the statistical office has published relevant figures. In addition, data may be revised if a response to a request to verify information collected for a particular organisation is received after the data collection has ended and the results were disseminated. If the information leads to a change in the data, then the update is made at the next available opportunity, usually at the latest within one month. The following revisions were applied: In 2017: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Germany: the whole-time series was revised to cover only Gemeinden and Städte (municipalities, towns); previously data referred to Landkreise, Stadtkreise, and Kreisfreie Städte. • France: 2015 data were updated with final election results (previously data referred to provisional results). • Cyprus: the whole time series revised to cover communities in addition to municipalities. • Austria: data on members for years 2011, 2013, and 2015 (previously not available) were added. In 2019: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Portugal: 2017 data for councillors were revised to include the mayors. • Greece: 2019 data for councillors updated in October 2019 to reflect the 2019 election results. In 2020: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Spain: 2019 data for mayors and councillors were updated to reflect the situation in September 2019. • Finland: 2019 data for mayors were revised. • Albania, Turkey and Norway: 2019 data for mayors and councillors were updated to reflect the 2019 election results.
2.1.6.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites (local government, national statistical office, and election registers) and contact persons in relevant organisations.
2.1.6.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Local/municipal councils • Mayors/Council leaders

2.2. Governments and other political executives

2.2.1. European Commission

2.2.1.1. Organisations covered	The European Commission is the politically independent institution that represents and upholds the interests of the EU as a whole. It is the driving force within the EU's institutional system: it proposes legislation, policies and programmes of action and it is responsible for implementing the decisions of the Parliament and the Council. In legal terms, the European Commission is a college of 27 Commissioners – one from each Member State – chaired by a President, under whose 'political guidance' it shall work.
2.2.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President of the Commission (elected by the European Parliament). • Commissioners (count includes the president). There is one Commissioner from each EU Member State.
2.2.1.3. Reference area	Not applicable.
2.2.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003. In addition, the dataset includes data collected in 1999 in the context of work undertaken by the Council of the European Union to monitor the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action.

2.2.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data on are collected on a quarterly basis, typically as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Q1: February/March • Q2: May • Q3: July/August • Q4: October/November
2.2.1.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
2.2.1.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
2.2.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.2.1.9. Comparability across countries	Not applicable.
2.2.1.10. Comparability over time	There are variations in the number of Commissioners due to changes in EU membership. The following changes took place: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2004Q2: 10 new Commissioners from the accession countries joined the Commission (), previously composed of 20 Commissioners from the EU-15. • 2004Q4: The number of Commissioners was reduced from 30 to 25 (one per Member State). • 2007Q1: The number of Commissioners increased from 25 to 27 following Bulgaria and Romania joining the EU. • 2012Q4: The College of Commissioners comprised 26 Commissioners temporarily due to the resignation of one member. • 2013Q3: The number of Commissioners increased to 28 as Croatia joined the EU. • 2019Q4: The number of Commissioners decreased to 27 as the UK departed from the EU. () Czechia, Estonia, Cyprus, Latvia, Lithuania, Hungary, Malta, Poland, Slovenia and Slovakia.
2.2.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
2.2.1.12. Data revision	None.
2.2.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from the official website.
2.2.1.14. Mapping tables	None.

2.2.2. National governments

2.2.2.1. Organisations covered	The national government is the executive body with authority to govern a country or state. The Cabinet is defined as a body of high-ranking members of government, typically representing the executive branch and formed of senior ministers. In some cases, where there are no junior ministers, the national government is the Cabinet. It may also be referred to as the Council of Ministers, an Executive Council or an Executive Committee. Data for ministers are available broken down by BEIS typology (Basic, Economy, Infrastructure and Socio-cultural functions within the government). In the case that a ministry has responsibility for multiple functions which cross BEIS types then it is categorised according to the type of the first function in its name.
2.2.2.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: elected head of state (where relevant). • Prime minister: head of the government. In some countries, alternative names are used (e.g. Chancellor). • Ministers: a minister or a secretary is a politician who holds significant public office in a national government. Senior ministers are members of the government who have a seat on the cabinet or council of ministers (count includes prime minister). Junior ministers are members of the government who do not have a seat on the cabinet. In some countries state-secretaries (or the national equivalent) are considered as junior ministers within the government (with no seat in the cabinet) but in other countries they are not considered as members of the government.
2.2.2.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.

2.2.2.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003 (for 26 countries) and then on a quarterly basis from the 2nd quarter of 2004 (the only gap in the series is the 3rd quarter of 2007). The geographic coverage has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2004Q4 • Lithuania: 2004Q4 • Malta: 2004Q4 • Poland: 2004Q4 • Turkey: 2005Q4 • Croatia: 2007Q1 • North Macedonia: 2008Q1 • Serbia: 2008Q1 • Montenegro: 2015Q1 • Albania: 2018Q3 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018Q3 • Kosovo: 2018Q3
2.2.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on a quarterly basis, typically as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Q1: February/March • Q2: May • Q3: July/August • Q4: October/November
2.2.2.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
2.2.2.7. Accuracy	For the following cases, the government cabinet had resigned and/or not formed at the time of data collection hence data from the last period were used: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2018Q1 and Q2 data refer to 2017Q4. • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018Q4 data refer to 2018Q3. • Finland: 2019Q2 data refer to 2019Q1. • Kosovo: 2020Q2 data refer to 2020Q1. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully accurate.
2.2.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.2.2.9. Comparability across countries	The major difference between countries is that in some countries the concept of government refers only to the cabinet (senior ministers) whilst in others the concept is wider and includes junior ministers. Data are broken down by level of seniority so that this difference can be taken into account. Apart from this point, data are fully comparable between countries.
2.2.2.10. Comparability over time	There are often changes in the size of governments and therefore the number of ministers counted following elections or reshuffles. In addition, there can also be changes in terms of which positions are considered (at national level) to be part of the 'government', primarily at junior level. The advice of national representatives is always sought before making any change in this respect. The changes below impact on the time-series for junior ministers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Greece: From 2015Q4, state secretaries were added to the count of junior ministers (previously only deputy ministers were counted). • Cyprus: No junior ministers counted from 2009Q4; previously permanent secretaries, deputy minister to the president, and the government spokesman were covered. • Hungary: No junior ministers counted from 2009Q4, previously, senior state secretaries were covered. • Serbia: No junior ministers counted from 2008Q4, previously state secretaries, secretary general, and assistant ministers were covered.

2.2.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	In the case of national governments, the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) compiles data on the numbers of men and women ministers in Europe from official national sources. However, UNECE data are compiled annually and not quarterly, and in some cases, do not reflect the current government composition, which might explain differences with the WMID data. In addition, only senior ministers are counted and data on junior ministers and presidents are not collected.
2.2.2.12. Data revision	The following revisions were made in the specified period: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2018Q2: 2015Q1-2017Q4 data revised for junior ministers in Bulgaria. • 2018Q3: 2018Q1 and Q2 data for senior ministers and 2017Q4-2018Q2 data for junior ministers in Norway revised. • 2018Q4: 2018Q3 data for senior ministers in Italy revised. • 2019Q2: Junior ministers data for Spain for periods 2018Q3-2019Q1, and 2019Q1 for Belgium, Portugal, Slovakia and Latvia, as well as 2019Q1 data for senior ministers in Malta revised. • 2019Q4: 2019Q3 data for junior ministers in Finland, the UK and North Macedonia as well as senior ministers data for Montenegro revised. • 2020Q1: data for junior ministers in Bulgaria (for periods 2019Q2-2019Q4) and Portugal (2019Q4) were revised. • 2020Q2: 2020Q1 data for Prime Minister and senior ministers in Finland and junior ministers in Poland revised. • 2020Q4: 2020Q3 data for junior ministers in Bulgaria and senior ministers in France revised.
2.2.2.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites.
2.2.2.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • National governments: presidents and prime ministers • National governments: senior and junior ministers

2.2.3. Regional executives

2.2.3.1. Organisations covered	Regional executives: a person or a body exercising executive functions on behalf of a region (regional authority) where these are not exercised by the representative body. The term region refers to regional authorities that are endowed with self-government. Regional authorities are territorial authorities between the central government and local authorities. This does not necessarily imply a hierarchical relationship between regional and local authorities. Regional self-government denotes the legal competence and the ability of regional authorities, within the limits of the constitution and the law, to regulate and manage a share of public affairs under their own responsibility, in the interests of the regional population and in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity.
2.2.3.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President. • Members (count includes the president).
2.2.3.3. Reference area	Currently, there are no regional authorities in 13 () of the 38 countries covered in the WMID data. Thus, only 23 countries are covered. () BG, EE, IE, CY, LT, LU, MT, SI, ME, MK, XK, IS, LI

2.2.3.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in 2003 for 20 countries, where applicable. Since then, data have been collected on an annual basis and updated quarterly in case of regional elections. The geographic coverage has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2004 • Denmark: 2004 • Greece: 2004 • France: 2004 • Latvia: 2004 • Poland: 2004 • Slovakia: 2004 • Turkey: 2005 • Croatia: 2007 • Serbia: 2008 • Albania: 2018 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018
2.2.3.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis in the last quarter of the year, generally between October and November. In addition, data are updated quarterly where there have been regional elections. In such cases, typically, data are collected as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Q1: February/March • Q2: May • Q3: July/August
2.2.3.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete but there are gaps due to data availability in some years.
2.2.3.7. Accuracy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Spain (Catalunya): 2017 data refer to 2016 as the regional government and parliament were suspended from October 2017-June 2018. • UK (Northern Ireland): 2017-2019 data refer to 2016 as the devolved government resigned in January 2017 and not re-formed until January 2020. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully accurate.
2.2.3.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.2.3.9. Comparability across countries	Regions refer to the regional authorities between the level of national and local government (though hierarchical control is not implied) which are endowed with self-government and are therefore not applicable in all countries. Currently 13 () of the 38 countries covered in the WMID data do not have regions following this definition. In addition, the heterogeneity of national systems implies that there are differences in the competences, power, financial resources, and average size of regional authorities across the countries covered in the database. () BG, EE, IE, CY, LT, LU, MT, SI, ME, MK, XK, IS, LI
2.2.3.10. Comparability over time	The number of regions covered across years may vary due to changes in administrative landscaping (i.e. mergers or divisions of existing regions), reforms in the regional governance system, or methodological revisions. These changes have an impact on the comparability of data over time. See section 2.1.5.10 for details on changes in number of regions covered.
2.2.3.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
2.2.3.12. Data revision	2014 and 2015 data for Mayotte in France added in 2016. Apart from this, there have been no major revisions.

2.3.1. Major political parties

2.3.1.1. Organisations covered	Major political parties: political parties with at least 5.0 % of seats in the national parliament (either of the upper or lower houses in case of a bicameral system) at the time of observation (i.e. beginning of the data collection). A political party is defined as an organised group of people with some common political aims and opinions that seek to influence public policy, usually by trying to get candidates elected to public office. Independents and coalitions are not included in the database. Coalitions are formal or informal groups of political parties. Only their constituent members are treated individually.
2.3.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Leader(s). • Deputy leader(s). NB: If the party is not headed by a leader or a president as such but by a group of persons, then the chair of the committee/group/board is considered as the leader of the party and the deputy chair as the deputy leader of the party. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In case of two or more vice-presidents/leaders, the first person(s) to be called in the absence of the leader is (are) taken into account (usually this is one out of two or three, but may also be two/three out of more). In the case of two or more vice-presidents/leaders with no one person nominated as first deputy then all are taken into account.
2.3.1.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
2.3.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in 2011 for 34 countries. The geographic coverage has expanded through time. For Montenegro, the time series starts in 2015 whilst for Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina and Kosovo, the time series starts in 2018.
2.3.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in April/May.
2.3.1.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
2.3.1.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
2.3.1.8. Sampling error	Political parties with less than 5 % representation in national parliaments (either lower or upper house in case of bicameral systems) or with no elected representatives are excluded. This implies data might not be fully representative of the whole spectrum of political parties in each country, but rather it presents the situation in parties with a real influence at the national level.
2.3.1.9. Comparability across countries	There are differences in the number of political parties covered by country (generally, coverage ranges from 2-10). Apart from this point, data are comparable between countries.
2.3.1.10. Comparability over time	There are often changes in the number of political parties covered per country in each data collection. This is due to the fact that the representation of political parties in national parliaments may change and only those holding at least 5 % of the parliamentary seats (in the upper or lower house in case of bicameral system) at the time of observation (i.e. at the beginning of data collection) are covered. This may have an impact on figures at the national level, particularly where there is only a small number of major political parties. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
2.3.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
2.3.1.12. Data revision	The following revisions were applied: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2019: 2018 data for deputy leaders in Hungary, Serbia, Liechtenstein, and Iceland (one party in each country) revised. • 2020: 2019 data for deputy leaders of a political party in Bosnia and Herzegovina revised.
2.3.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact persons in relevant organisations.
2.3.1.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Major political parties

2.4. Advisory Committees

2.4.1. European committees

2.4.1.1. Organisations covered	Representative committees at European level that are consulted by the Council, the Commission and the European Parliament on relevant policy issues and thus have a key role in the Union's decision-making process: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The European Economic and Social Committee (EESC) represents the various economic and social components of organised civil society. The consultative role of EESC enables its members, and hence the organisations they represent, to participate in the Community decision-making process. Its members are appointed by the Council of the European Union. • The Committee of the Regions (CoR) is the political assembly that provides local and regional authorities with a voice at the heart of the European Union. The Commission, Council and European Parliament have the option to consult the CoR on issues if they see important regional or local implications to a proposal. The CoR can also draw up an opinion on its own initiative, which enables it to put issues on the EU agenda.
2.4.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President. • Members (count includes the president).
2.4.1.3. Reference area	Not applicable.
2.4.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003.
2.4.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on a quarterly basis, typically as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Q1: February/March • Q2: May • Q3: July/August • Q4: October/November
2.4.1.6. Completeness	Data are complete. Data broken down by country available from 2018Q1.
2.4.1.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
2.4.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
2.4.1.9. Comparability across countries	Not applicable.
2.4.1.10. Comparability over time	There are variations in the number of members due to changes in the national delegations; in addition, the total number of members changed over time due to changes in EU membership. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
2.4.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
2.4.1.12. Data revision	None.
2.4.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites.
2.4.1.14. Mapping tables	None.

3. Public administration

3.1. Senior administrators at European level

3.1.1. European Union institutions, European committees and Agencies of the European Community

3.1.1.1. Organisations covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • European Commission: Directorates-General and services of European Commission. • European Parliament: Services of the European Parliament. • General Secretariat of the Council of the European Union. • European Committees: Committee of Regions and European Economic and Social Committee. • Agencies of the European Community: Community agencies are bodies governed by European public law, with their own legal personality, that are established by an act of secondary legislation in order to accomplish a very specific technical, scientific or managerial task. Note that Community agencies may use various names such as Centre, Foundation, Agency, Office or Observatory. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Agencies: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Executive agencies are not covered by the data as they are linked and supervised by DGs of the European Commission and have no decision-making powers. • Joint Undertakings are not covered by the data.
3.1.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Level 1 administrators: Director General, Deputy Director General or equivalent. • Level 2 administrators: Director, Principal Advisor or equivalent. • Senior administrators: sum of level 1 and level 2 administrators. • Secretary-general (European Committees). • President and members of the highest decision-making body of European agencies (count of members includes president). • Executive head of European agencies: highest executive position or head of the highest executive body. Usually referred to as either the secretary general or managing director. For organisations that do not have a separate executive position, the president is counted instead.
3.1.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003 with the exception of European Economic and Social Committee, for which routine data collection started in 2005. The dataset also includes data for the European institutions collected in 1999 in the context of work undertaken by the Council of the European Union to monitor the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action.
3.1.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically between June and September.
3.1.1.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
3.1.1.7. Accuracy	In the case of European institutions, 2020 data for levels 1 and 2 administrators in the European Parliament refers to 2019. Apart from this point, data can be considered fully accurate.
3.1.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
3.1.1.9. Comparability across countries	Not applicable.

3.1.1.10. Comparability over time	In the case of European institutions, there are changes in the administrative grades (internal reform within EU institutions) and changes in the number of members of some organisations linked to EU enlargements over time. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time. In the case of European Committees, data can be considered comparable over time. For European agencies, there are often changes in the number of organisations covered as new agencies are created while some are abolished. The list of decentralised agencies is updated at the beginning of each data collection list. In the case of decentralised agencies, the vote for the European Commission in the highest decision-making body of the European Training Foundation (ETF) is shared between 3 representatives. From 2018, all 3 representatives are included in the members count. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
3.1.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
3.1.1.12. Data revision	In the case of European agencies, the following revisions were applied: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2016: 2015 data updated to include the Single Resolution Board (SRB) in the European agencies dataset. • 2020: 2019 data revised for members of the European Training Foundation (ETF).
3.1.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact persons in relevant organisations.
3.1.1.14. Mapping tables	None.

3.2. Senior administrators at national level

3.2.1. National administrations

3.2.1.1. Organisations covered	Public administrations: department of a national government, led by a minister. Central administrations are also referred to as ministries. Data are available broken down by BEIS typology (Basic, Economy, Infrastructure and Socio-cultural functions within the government).
3.2.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Level 1 administrators: all administrative (non-political) positions from the head of the ministry down to the level of head of directorate or similar, where a directorate is a major section within the ministry. • Level 2 administrators: all positions below the head of directorate down to the level of head of division/department, where a division/department is the first level of organisation below the directorate (i.e. the second level of functional organisation). • Senior administrators: sum of level 1 and level 2 administrators. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The names of the positions covered vary between countries and even between ministries in the same country. • In some cases (e.g. Croatia), the positions covered may be appointed by the government but have an administrative role in running the ministry departments.
3.2.1.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.

3.2.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003 for 26 countries. The geographic coverage of the database has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2004 • Lithuania: 2004 • Malta: 2004 • Poland: 2004 • Turkey: 2005 • Croatia: 2007 • North Macedonia: 2008 • Serbia: 2008 • Montenegro: 2015 • Albania: 2018 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018 • Kosovo: 2018
3.2.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis typically between July and December.
3.2.1.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete with the exceptions below: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2007: Level 1 & 2 data not available for one ministry (Economy function) in Czechia. • 2008: Level 2 data not available for one ministry (Basic functions) in Bulgaria. Level 1 & 2 data not available for one ministry (Basic functions) in Turkey. • 2009-2011: Data not available for level 2 in Finland. • 2012: For Serbia, data partially unavailable due to ongoing administrative reform at the time of data collection. No breakdown by ministry available for France. • 2013: No breakdown by ministry available for France. • 2017: Level 1 & 2 data not available for seven ministries in Greece (five with Basic function, one Economy function, and one Socio-cultural function), five ministries in France (two Basic functions, one Economy function, two Socio-cultural function), one ministry in Cyprus (Basic function), one ministry in Slovakia (Economy function), two ministries in United Kingdom (Basic function). Level 1 data not available for one ministry in Serbia (Basic function) and Level 2 data not available for one ministry in Netherlands (Basic function). • 2018: Level 2 data not available for Turkey due to administrative reform ongoing at the time of data collection. Level 1 & 2 data not available for five ministries in France (two with Basic functions, one Economy function, and two Socio-cultural function), a ministry in Cyprus (Basic functions), and two in Poland (one with Economy function and the other with Socio-cultural function), Data not available for Level 1 in two ministries in Greece (both with Basic functions), and Level 2 in a ministry in Netherlands (Basic functions).

3.2.1.7. Accuracy	Data for some countries refer to situation in an earlier period, as the most up-to-date information was not available. See details below: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2007: Level 2 data for Germany refers to June 2006. For France, Level 1 & 2 data refer to end of 2005 and for Finland, Iceland and Norway it refers to end of 2006. • 2008: Level 2 data for Bulgaria and Italy and Level 1 & 2 data for Hungary, United Kingdom and Norway refer to end of 2007. For France, Level 1 & 2 data refer to end of 2006. • 2009: Level 2 data for France and Level 1 & 2 data for Norway refer to end of 2008. • 2010: Level 1 & 2 data for France, Hungary and Norway refer to end of 2009. • 2011: Level 1 & 2 data for France and Hungary refer to end of 2009 and for Czechia, Germany, United Kingdom and Norway refer to end of 2010. • 2012: Level 1 & 2 data for Hungary refer to 2009 (though data does not include the ministries that were dissolved in 2012), for Czechia it refers to end of 2010 and for Germany, Netherlands, and Norway it refers to end of 2011. Level 1 data in United Kingdom refer to end of 2011 and Level 2 data for Finland refer to 2012. • 2013: Level 1 & 2 data for Czechia and Germany and Level 2 data for Estonia refer to 2012. • 2014: For France, Level 1 & 2 data refer to end of 2012. Level 1 & 2 data for Czechia, Greece and Level 2 data for United Kingdom refer to end of 2013. • 2015: Level 1 & 2 data for Greece and France refer to end of 2013. Level 1 & 2 data for Czechia, Germany and Serbia and Level 2 data for Estonia and Finland refer to end of 2014. • 2016: Level 1 & 2 data for France refer to end of 2014 and for Czechia refer to end of 2015. • 2017: Level 1 & 2 data for France refer to end of 2015. For Czechia, Germany, Greece, Latvia, Luxembourg, and Norway Level 1 & 2 data refer to 2016. • 2018: Level 1 & 2 data refer to end of 2016 for France and end of 2017 for Czechia, Luxembourg, Poland and Norway. • 2019: data for Level 1 & 2 in Czechia, Luxembourg, Poland, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Norway and Level 2 in Croatia refer to situation at the end of 2018. Also, data for Level 1 & 2 in one ministry (Economy function) in Serbia and Level 2 in one ministry (Basic function) in North Macedonia refer to 2018. Level 1 & 2 data for France refer to end of 2017. • 2020: Data for level 1 & 2 in Italy, Poland, and Slovakia and Level 2 in Turkey refer to 2019 (no response). Data refer to situation at the end of 2018 for France and end of 2019 for Czechia, Luxembourg, and Norway.
3.2.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
3.2.1.9. Comparability across countries	The names of the positions covered vary between countries and sometimes between ministries in the same country. In addition, there are differences in national administrative systems. For example, level 1 and level 2 in administrators correspond to different functions from a country to another and also between ministries within a country. Fixing 'level 1' to refer to the first level below the political positions can result in big differences between countries where only the minister is counted as political and others where two or more tiers are considered political. This is visible for instance in the high differences in the average number of administrators covered by country. Depending on the institutional organisation in the country, this difference may be exacerbated further at the next level (level 2). The data are broken down by BEIS typology (functions within government), and mapping tables with a list of positions covered at each level are published so that this difference can be taken into account. Apart from these points, the data are fully comparable between countries.

3.2.1.10. Comparability over time	The number of ministries covered may vary over time due to organisational changes. In addition, in 2009 the methodology was revised to provide clearer definitions of level 1 and level 2 administrators. This revision affects data for Estonia, Spain, Italy, Lithuania, the Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Romania, and Finland. Subsequently, the following country - specific revisions of coverage were applied: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2010: Ireland (Level 2) and Spain (Level 2). • 2012: Romania (Level 2) and Croatia (Level 1). • 2014: Spain and Slovakia (both levels). • 2017: Croatia (both levels) and Malta (Level 2). • 2018: Turkey (both levels following administrative reform). • 2019: Lithuania Level 2 (one more position added)
3.2.1.12. Data revision	For some countries, data for the reference period are provided later than the data collection dates. Data for the effected years are revised accordingly. The following revisions have been made in: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2009: 2008 data revised for both levels in Slovenia. • 2014: 2010-2013 data revised for both levels in Sweden. • 2016: 2015 data revised for both levels in Norway. • 2017: 2016 data for both levels in Slovakia and Norway and Level 2 data in Denmark revised. • 2018: 2017 data revised for both levels in Belgium. • 2019: revised 2018 data for Level 2 in France and 2017 data for both levels in Norway. • 2020: 2019 data revised for both levels in Czechia and Sweden and Level 1 in Germany.

4.1.1.1. Organisations covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) consists of two courts: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Court of Justice: the highest court in the European Union in matters of EU laws. The Court of Justice ensures that EU legislation is interpreted and applied in the same way in each Member State. The Court has competence, among other things, to rule on applications for annulment or actions for failure to act brought by a Member State or an institution, actions against Member States for failure to fulfil obligations, references for a preliminary ruling and appeals against decisions of the General Court. The General Court (formerly known as the European Court of First Instance): attached to the Court of Justice, the General Court has jurisdiction to hear and determine at first instance all direct actions brought by individuals and the Member States, with the exception of those to be assigned to a 'judicial panel' and those reserved for the Court of Justice. Since September 2016, the General Court also has jurisdiction to rule on civil service actions following the termination of the Civil Service Tribunal (established in 2005). Other European courts: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The European Court of Human Rights: is an institution of the Council of Europe, which has 47 Member States, and monitors compliance with the European Convention on Human Rights. In cases where the supreme court takes responsibility for administrative jurisdiction, it is covered only in that section. • Constitutional courts: a legal body responsible for ensuring the compatibility of legislation with the provisions and principles of the constitution in each country, in particular to protect constitutionally established rights and freedoms. In cases where the supreme court takes responsibility for constitutional jurisdiction, it is covered only in that section. In countries where the constitution does not recognise the concept of supreme law then a constitutional court does not exist. • Public prosecutor: or prosecutor general is the most senior government official(s) responsible for the prosecution of criminal actions on behalf of the state. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • There is no Supreme court in Malta; the judges in the Constitutional Court, the Court of Appeal and the Court of Criminal Appeal are counted instead.

The count for members includes the president. • Administrative courts: president. • Constitutional courts: president. • Public prosecutor: public prosecutor or equivalent position(s). In some countries, the figure of public prosecutor is shared amongst a group of general prosecutors in which case all are included in the count.
4.2.1.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
4.2.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003 (for 26 countries). The geographic coverage of the database has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2004 • Lithuania: 2004 • Malta: 2004 • Poland: 2004 • Turkey: 2005 • Croatia: 2007 • North Macedonia: 2008 • Serbia: 2008 • Montenegro: 2015 • Albania: 2018 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018 • Kosovo: 2018
4.2.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically between May and September.
4.2.1.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete from 2006 but there are gaps in the period 2003-2006. Countries where data are not available are listed below by type of court and period. Note that administrative and constitutional courts are not applicable in all countries therefore the lists below exclude these cases. Data are not available for the supreme court for the following countries: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2003: Bulgaria, Greece, Liechtenstein • 2004-2005: Malta, Liechtenstein • 2006: Italy, Liechtenstein Data are not available for the constitutional court for the following countries: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2003: Luxembourg • 2004: Luxembourg, Malta • 2005: Malta Data are not available for the administrative court for the following countries: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2003: Greece, Italy, Romania, Slovenia • 2004-2006: Romania Data are not available for the public prosecutor for the following countries: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2003: Ireland, Greece, Spain, Latvia, Slovenia, Slovakia, Iceland • 2004: Italy, Iceland • 2005: Iceland • 2006: Italy, Hungary, Iceland
4.2.1.7. Accuracy	2019 data for the supreme court in Albania refers to 2018, and 2020 data for Malta and Turkey refer to 2019. Apart from this point, data can be considered fully accurate.
4.2.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.

4.2.1.9. Comparability across countries	The main difference between countries is that administrative and constitutional courts do not exist in all countries or its competences are carried out by the supreme court. In cases where the supreme court takes the responsibility for either court, it is covered only in the supreme courts section. The number of public prosecutors varies by country as in some cases the role is shared amongst a board of general prosecutors (Belgium and the Netherlands) or with the Attorney General (Austria). Apart from these points, the data are comparable between countries.
4.2.1.10. Comparability over time	There are often changes in the number of supreme court judges and therefore the number of members counted in each data collection may differ. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
4.2.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
4.2.1.12. Data revision	After clarifications received and data review, the following revisions were applied: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2016: 2015 data for administrative court in Montenegro were added. • 2017: data for the supreme court in Malta were revised for periods 2007-2017. • 2018: 2017 data for the constitutional court in Montenegro were revised. Data for the supreme court in Turkey were revised for 2016 and 2017 (prior to this, data referred to 2015 as no up-to-date information available). • 2020: 2018 and 2019 data for the administrative court in Croatia revised.

5. Business and finance

5.1. Business

5.1.1. Largest listed companies

5.1.1.1. Organisations covered	Largest listed companies: the largest publicly listed companies in each country. Publicly listed means that the shares of the company are traded on the stock exchange. The 'largest' companies are taken to be the members (max.50) of the primary blue-chip index, which is an index maintained by the stock exchange covering the largest companies by market capitalisation and/or market trades. Only companies which are registered in the country concerned (according to the ISIN code) are counted. Therefore, the number of companies covered by the data (which is shown in the table of data) may be lower than the number of constituents in the relevant blue-chip index. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • There are two main stock exchanges in Bosnia and Herzegovina: Sarajevo Stock Exchange (SASE) and Banja Luka Stock Exchange (BLSE). The BTAX index (managed by Vienna Stock Exchange) includes 6 companies with largest market capitalisation and liquidity selected from the main index of SASE (SASX-10) and BLSE (BIRS). WMID data covers BTAX (6 constituents) and 4 other companies with highest market capitalisation selected from the combined list of SASX-10 and BIRS.
5.1.1.2. Positions covered	Board members: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: chairperson of the highest decision-making body in each company. The highest decision-making body is usually termed the supervisory board (in case of a two-tier governance system) or the board of directors (in a unitary system). • Board members: data cover all members of the highest decision-making body in each company (i.e. chairperson, non-executive directors, senior executives and employee representatives, where present). The highest decision-making body is usually termed the supervisory board (in case of a two-tier governance system) or the board of directors (in a unitary system). Executives and non-executives: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Executives: senior executives in the two highest decision-making bodies in each company. The two highest decision-making bodies are usually referred to as the supervisory board and the management board (in case of a two-tier governance system) and the board of directors and executive/management committee (in a unitary system). • Non-executives: non-executive members of the two highest decision-making bodies in each company. The two highest decision-making bodies are usually referred to as the supervisory board and the management board (in case of a two-tier governance system) and the board of directors and executive/management committee (in a unitary system). Employee representatives participating in the highest decision-making board are included in the count of non-executive members. CEOs: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Chief Executive Officer or equivalent position. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Any individual who sits in both decision-making bodies of a particular company is counted only once.
5.1.1.3. Reference area	There is no stock exchange in Liechtenstein and Kosovo and the Albanian Stock exchange has no listed companies. Therefore, data on largest listed companies are collected for 35 countries covered by the WMID data.

5.1.1.4. Time coverage	Data on board members of largest listed companies were first collected in 2003B2 (for 25 countries). Data for CEOs, executive and non-executive members were first collected in 2012B2 (for 33 countries). The geographic coverage of the database has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Czechia: 2004B2 • Malta: 2004B2 • Poland: 2004B2 • Lithuania: 2005B2 • Turkey: 2005B2 • Croatia: 2007B2 • North Macedonia: 2008B2 • Serbia: 2008B2 • Montenegro: 2015B1 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018B2
5.1.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data on board members of largest listed companies were collected on an annual basis up to 2011, generally between September and December. Since 2012, data for all positions are collected on a biannual basis, typically in April (B1) and October (B2).
5.1.1.6. Completeness	Data are mostly complete from 2008, and complete for all companies covered from 2015. Companies are contacted where publicly available information is not sufficient to ensure completeness of data.
5.1.1.7. Accuracy	Data for individual companies are mostly sourced from company websites but when information is not available it is sought from stock exchange sites. Sometimes information on the decision-making positions are not readily available and have to be retrieved from annual reports, which may not be up-to-date. Apart from this point, data can be considered fully accurate.
5.1.1.8. Sampling error	Data cover only publicly listed companies that fulfil the selection criteria i.e. national companies which are constituents of blue-chip indices (see section 5.1.1.1 for more details). This implies data might not be fully representative of the whole spectrum of publicly listed companies in each country, but rather it presents the situation in companies with the most economic influence at national level.
5.1.1.9. Comparability across countries	The differences in corporate governance systems in place across and within countries should be considered. The count of executives is not always exactly comparable between countries i.e. in a two-tier governance model, the second tier is usually made up of executives while in a unitary system, where possible, executives are counted from the most senior nominated executive body. See below the list of countries by the governance system generally found. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • One-tier: IE, EL, ES, IT, LU, HU, MT, FI, SE, UK, ME, TR, IS, NO • Two-tier: CZ, DK, DE, EE, LV, AT, PL, SK • Mixed: BE, BG, FR, HR, CY, LT, NL, PT, RO, SI, MK, RS, BA Moreover, one has to take into account that the coverage of firms is not exactly comparable for every country as the number of companies is neither the same for all countries nor strictly proportional to the country size. The constituents of the blue-chip index of the national stock exchange in each country are covered (max. 50). In cases where the blue-chip index does not cover enough companies (i.e. less than 10), companies with the next largest market capitalisation are taken into account when possible to have a sample of at least 10 companies in each country. Non-national companies (i.e. those registered in another country according to the ISIN code) are excluded so that the data for each country cover only the companies registered in that country.

5.1.1.10. Comparability over time	Comparability over time is affected by two types of changes in coverage (i.e. organisations covered): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Methodological reviews: From 2003-2006 the database covered the 50 largest listed companies in each country. In 2007, the approach was changed to focus only on companies that are constituents of the main blue-chip index in each country. This change was implemented in order to avoid giving undue weight to companies that were actually relatively small, particularly in smaller countries where relatively few companies are listed. The methodology was also changed to ensure that only nationally registered companies were taken into account – previously companies with dual listings could be counted in both countries. In practice, the change may have caused some minor effect on the time-series at national level (particularly for countries with small sample size) but the aggregate EU level figure is considered to be consistent despite the reduced sample. From 2008, the rule of a minimum of 10 companies per country was applied to reduce discrepancies due to sample size. • Regular update: For each data collection period, the list of constituents of the blue-chip index is taken from the appropriate national stock exchange at the start of the collection (the frequency with which indices are revised varies between countries). It should be noted that changes in the composition of blue-chip index may have an impact on figures at the national level, particularly in countries where the index has a small number of components. There are also changes in the main blue-chip index covered over time: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Denmark: from April 2018, the main blue-chip index changed from OMX Copenhagen 20 to OMX Copenhagen 25, increasing the number of constituents from 20 to 25. • Greece: from April 2013, the main blue-chip index changed from FTSE/ASE 20 to FTSE/ASE 25, increasing the number of constituents from 20 to 25. • Romania: from October 2014, the main blue-chip index changed from ROTX to BET. The number of constituents remain the same, but it should be noted that the composition may vary over time. • Slovenia: the following indices are covered in the specified periods: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2007-2009: SBI20 (20 constituents). • 2010-2011: LJSE70 (top 20 companies with highest market capitalisation). • From 2012: SBITOP + other companies with highest market capitalisation (total of 20 companies covered). • Iceland: the following indices are covered in the specified periods: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2007-2008: OMX Iceland 15 (15 constituents). • 2009-2013: OMX Iceland 6 + 4 companies with largest market capitalisation (10 constituents). • From April 2014: OMX Iceland All-Shared (OMXIGI), increasing the number of constituents (varies over time). • Turkey: following consultation with contacts from the stock exchange, in 2019B2, the main blue-chip index was changed from BIST 50 to BIST 30; this index covers the list of companies with the largest market capitalisation and trade value. In terms of positions covered, in 2016, as a result of a methodological review process, the bodies covered for some of companies in Hungary were modified, so that the board of directors was taken as the highest decision-making body (previously, some companies had supervisory bodies but this was deemed to be a body with no full decision-making powers after the whole assessment). The review also looked at other elements such as positions covered and counted as senior executives (e.g. secretaries of boards), which resulted in minor changes.
5.1.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.

5.1.1.12. Data revision	After clarifications received and data review, the following revisions were made: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2016B2: data revised for Malta (2013B1-2016B1); Iceland (2016B1); and Bulgaria (2016B1). • 2017B1: data revised for Slovakia (2016B2) and Germany (2014B2 – 2016B2). • 2017B2: data revised for executives in Estonia (2017B1). • 2018B1: data revised for executives in Romania (2017B2) and Sweden (2014B2-2017B2). • 2018B2: data revised for employee representatives and non-executives in Germany and executive in Luxembourg (2018B1). • 2019B1: 2018B2 data revised for Spain (executives only), Italy and Cyprus (executives, non-executives and board members in both countries). 2017B2 executives and non-executives and 2018B1 and 2018B2 executives data for Greece were revised. • 2019B2: the following revisions were applied to each position: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Executives: data revised for Montenegro (2015B1-2019B1), Iceland (2016B1-2019B1) and 2019B1 for Denmark, France, Croatia, Italy, Hungary, Sweden, Iceland, Norway as well 2018B2-2019B1 for Estonia and Lithuania. For Malta, data revised for periods 2018B1-2019B1. • Board members: 2019B1 data revised for Iceland, Bulgaria, Estonia, Croatia, Latvia, Slovakia, United Kingdom whilst for France, Malta and Turkey revisions applied to 2018B2-2019B1. • Employee representatives: 2017B2-2019B1 for France and 2019B1 data for Czechia revised. • A company (acquired foreign ISIN in 2017) deleted for Cyprus from 2017B1-2019B1 following clarifications from contact person in the stock exchange. • 2020B1: 2019B1 and 2019B2 data for executives in Belgium and board members, executives and non-executives in France revised. 5.2.2. Central banks

5.2.2.1. Organisations covered	Central banks: the entity responsible for overseeing the monetary system for a country (or group of Member States). The central banks oversee monetary policy, and work towards specific goals such as currency stability, low inflation and full employment as well as issue currency, function as the bank of the government, regulate the credit system, oversee commercial banks, manage exchange reserves and act as a lender of last resort.
5.2.2.2. This means that multiple decision-making bodies (excluding those which are primarily responsible for monitoring i.e. audit committee or the advisory board) may be taken into account for some countries. • The Governor is included in the count of members of decision-making bodies unless he/ she is not a voting member of the bodies counted. • Persons who belong to more than one body are counted only once.
5.2.2.3. Reference area	There is no central bank in Liechtenstein (the Swiss National Bank serves as the national bank of the country); data on central banks are collected for 37 countries covered by the WMID data.

5.2.2.4. 5.2.2.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
5.2.2.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
5.2.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
5.2.2.9. Comparability across countries	The organisational structure varies from one country to another and there are often several decision-making bodies, with distinct functions and differences in the decision-making powers. In some cases, for example, the board of directors may be the main decision-making body of the central bank in terms of general policy, administration and management, but the board of governors has sole responsibility for monetary policy. In other cases, a supervisory board technically holds the supreme power within the bank structure but may in fact have little impact in terms of decision-making, serving mainly to supervise the activities of the body/bodies responsible for policy and general management.
5.2.2.10. Comparability over time	In the period 2003-2007, only one body (the 'highest' decision-making body) was covered. Following a methodological review in 2008, data were collected for multiple bodies in order to include all positions with decision-making power and obtain a more uniform coverage. Data can be considered fully comparable over time from 2008.
5.2.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
5.2.2.12. 6.1.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically between May and September.
6.1.1.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete.
6.1.1.7. Accuracy	2019 data for members in one employees' organisation (cross-industry social dialogue) refers 2018 as the new composition was not available at the time of data collection. Apart from this, data can be considered fully accurate.
6.1.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
6.1.1.9. Comparability across countries	Not applicable.

6.1.1.10. Comparability over time	It should be noted that for some organisations the decision-making body covered may not be consistent through time – in some cases because the organisation has changed its way of working, in others because the body covered has changed as the methodology has been improved. The list of organisations covered may also change over time due to changes in the landscape of the social dialogue (e.g. mergers or organisations, new organisations created, etc.). Since 2007, in cases where the head of the highest decision-making body and the daily executive head are the same person, he/she is counted in both positions and if there is no separate executive head position, then the president is counted instead.
6.1.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.

The counting includes only members with full voting rights. • Executive head: highest executive position or head of the highest executive body. Usually referred to as either the secretary general or managing director. For organisations that do not have a separate executive position, the president is counted instead. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • For each social partner organisation, the highest decision-making body/bodies covered are those: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • that have a major impact on the policy and operation of the organisation; • that take decisions on a regular basis (more than biannually); and • whose members are clearly identifiable individuals and not organisations. • If the head of the highest decision-making body and the head of the daily executive body are the same person, he/she is counted in both positions.
6.1.2.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
6.1.2.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 4th quarter of 2014 for 34 countries and 2014 data for Montenegro were added at the beginning of 2016. The geographic coverage of the database has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Albania: 2018 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018 • Kosovo: 2018
6.1.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on a biennial basis (every two years), typically between August and November.
6.1.2.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete but there are some gaps as some of the organisations covered do not have an official website or contact details.
6.1.2.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate, although in some cases data are retrieved from annual reports (which may not be up-to-date) and most recent board decision documents available. Organisations are contacted directly when publicly available information is not sufficient or if further clarification is needed.
6.1.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
6.1.2.9. Comparability across countries	The major difference between countries is the diversity in the structure of the social dialogue and in the structure of social partner organisations. On the one hand, differences in the structure of the social dialogue affect the comparability in that the number of organisations covered per country may vary significantly. In addition, the diversity in the structures of the organisations affects the comparability of data in terms of bodies and positions, as the size and scope of the governing body and the number of vice-presidents per organisation may vary. It should be noted that the executive heads are not distinguished from the presidents in all organisations.
6.1.2.10. Comparability over time	The changes in national legislation relating to the structure of the social dialogue (e.g. changes in the standards that confederations need to fulfil so as to participate in collective bargaining) or improvements in the methodology may affect the list of organisations to be covered. Governing bodies may also differ over time as organisations may change their internal structure. Apart from these points, data are comparable.

6.1.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	Since 2008, the European Trade Union Confederation (ETUC) conducts an annual survey on its members to monitor the participation of women in the European trade union movement. In its ninth edition (May 2016), the survey included questions on the proportion of women in key decision-making bodies for the first time. Although some data may coincide, there are differences in methodology (bodies and positions covered) and coverage (the survey only covers employee organisations that are members of ETUC).
6.1.2.12. Data revision	In 2016, data for a number of organisations were updated for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2014: BE, CZ, DE, ES, FR, IT, LU, HU, MT, NL, AT, RO, SI, SK, FI, ME, MK and NO. In 2020, data for a number of organisations were updated for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2014: BE, IT, HU, RO, SI, FI, SE, MK, TR; • 2016: BG, IT, HU, PT, RO, SI, FI, SE, MK, TR, UK, IS; • 2018: BE, BG, CZ, DK, EL, ES, FR, HR, IT, CY, LT, HU, MT, PL, PT, RO, SI, SK, SE, ME, MK, AL, TR, BA, UK, NO. In 2020, the organisations covered by the data were revised for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2014: RO, SK; • 2016: BG, RO, SK, AL; • 2018: BG, HR, EL, LT, RO, PL, SK, AL, BA. In January 2021, the organisations covered were revised for RO (2014-2020) and data were updated for RO and UK (2018-2020).

6.2. NGOs

6.2.2.1. Organisations covered	Non-governmental organisations established at European level. Data cover those organisations recognised by the EU Civil Society Contact Group. The EU Civil Society Contact Group brings together eight large rights and value based NGO sectors: culture, development, education, environment, human rights, public health, social and women. 6.2.2.3. Reference area	Not applicable.
6.2.2.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in the 3rd quarter of 2003 for all European NGOs members of the EU Civil Society Contact Group. From 2007, the list was limited to the eight representatives of the sectoral NGO groupings (see section 6.2.1.10).
6.2.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically between May and September.
6.2.2.6. Completeness	Data are complete.

6.2.2.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
6.2.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
6.2.2.9. Comparability across countries	Not applicable.
6.2.2.10. Comparability over time	From 2007, coverage was reduced to only include the eight representatives of the sectoral NGO groupings. Previously, data were collected for all European NGO networks that were members of the umbrella organisations in the EU Civil Society Contact Group (around 60 organisations). Data are therefore fully comparable over time since 2007.
6.2.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
6.2.2.12. Data revision	None.

7. Environment and climate change

7.1. United National Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC)

7.1.1. Bureau of the Conference of Parties (COP), EU and national delegations

7.1.1.1. Organisations covered	The United National Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) is an international treaty which provides a framework for the 195 Parties to limit average global temperature increases resulting in climate change and to cope with its impacts. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Conference of the Parties (COP): all States that are Parties to the Convention are represented at the COP, the highest political decision-making body of the Convention. • Subsidiary Bodies (SBs): there are two permanent Subsidiary Bodies (the Subsidiary Body for Scientific and technological Advice and the Subsidiary Body for Implementation). These bodies (collectively known as SBs) provide support to the COP in technical matters (ad-hoc working groups are also included in the count, as applicable). • Bureau of the COP: responsible for questions of process management of international negotiation within the COP.
7.1.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Bureau of the COP: president and members (count includes the president). • COP and SBs: members of national and EU delegations.
7.1.1.3. Reference area	Data on national delegations to the COP and the SBs are collected for the 38 countries covered in the WMID data.
7.1.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in 2012 (for 34 countries). The geographic coverage has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Montenegro: 2015 • Albania: 2018 • Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018 • Kosovo: 2018
7.1.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in November/December. Note whilst the COP usually takes place in November/December, the SB sessions tend to take place in May/June. Therefore, for each reference year, data refer to the situation in the meeting month, respectively.
7.1.1.6. Completeness	In 2020, UNFCCC meeting of COP (COP26) and SB session (SB52) were postponed to 2021 due to COVID-19. Thus, 2020 data for the EU and national delegations to the COP and SB session is flagged as not applicable. Apart from this, data are complete.
7.1.1.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
7.1.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
7.1.1.9. Comparability across countries	Comparability within countries is only relevant for national delegations to the COP and the SBs. The difference in sizes of delegations by country should be taken into account. Apart from this point, data are comparable between countries.
7.1.1.10. Comparability over time	There are often changes in the size of national delegations. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
7.1.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
7.1.1.12. Data revision	None.
7.1.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from the official website and documentation.

7.2.1.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
7.2.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
7.2.1.9. Comparability across countries	Not applicable.
7.2.1.10. Comparability over time	There are changes in the number of members of Committees and in the number of Commissioners due to EU enlargement. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
7.2.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
7.2.1.12. Data revision	None.
7.2.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites.

7.3. Environment decision-making in national governments and public administration

7.3.1. National ministries dealing with environment and climate change

7.3.1.1. Organisations covered	Environment, climate change, transport and energy ministries or departments of national governments. Note that the names of the ministries may vary between countries.
7.3.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Senior ministers: members of the government in ministries with competences in environment, climate change, energy and transport who have a seat on the cabinet or council of ministers. Junior ministers: members of the government in ministries with competences in environment, climate change, energy and transport who do not have a seat on the cabinet. Members of the government or political executive: sum of senior and junior ministers. Level 1 administrators: highest level of administrative (non-political) positions in ministries with competences in environment, climate change, energy and transport.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Level 2 administrators: second level of administrative (non-political) positions in ministries with competences in environment, climate change, energy and transport. Senior administrators: sum of level 1 and level 2 administrators.
7.3.1.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
7.3.1.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in 2012 for 34 countries. The geographic coverage has expanded through time so for the countries listed below the time series starts in the period indicated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Montenegro: 2015 Albania: 2018 Bosnia and Herzegovina: 2018 Kosovo: 2018
7.3.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in November/December.
7.3.1.6. Completeness	Data are generally complete.
7.3.1.7. Accuracy	For some countries, data on administrators refer to situation as of previous year, as most up-to-date information is not available (see section on Public Administration). Apart from this point, data can be considered fully accurate.
7.3.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
7.3.1.9. Comparability across countries	The major difference between countries is that in some countries the concept of government refers only to the cabinet (senior ministers) whilst in others the concept is wider and includes junior ministers. Data are broken down by level of seniority so that this difference can be taken into account. The different political and institutional systems implemented across countries also results in functions corresponding to junior ministers to differ from a country to another. Likewise, for administrative positions, there are differences in national administrative systems (for example, level 1 and level 2 administrators correspond to different functions from a country to another and also between ministries within a country). Fixing 'level 1' to refer to the first level below the political positions can result in big differences between countries where only the minister is counted as political and others where two or more tiers are considered as such. This is visible for instance in the high differences in the average number of administrators covered by country. Depending on the institutional organisation in the country, this difference may be exacerbated further at the next level (level 2). Apart from these points, data are comparable between countries.
7.3.1.10. Comparability over time	There are often changes in the size of governments and therefore the number of ministers counted following elections or reshuffles may differ. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
7.3.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
7.3.1.12. Data revision	None.

8. Media

8.1. Public broadcasters and media regulatory authorities

8.1.1. Public broadcasters

8.1.1.1. Organisations covered	Publicly owned broadcasting organisations (TV, radio and news agencies) operating at the national level. In the case that no national level public broadcasters exist, the highest sub-national (regional) organisations are counted instead. In all other cases, regional and local organisations are excluded. TV, radio and news agencies are counted separately provided they have separate operational structures with independent decision-making bodies. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> In Belgium, there are no public broadcasters at the national level. In this case, separate broadcasters for each of the linguistic communities are covered instead. Publicly owned broadcasters may be co-funded by private sources.
8.1.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> President: chairperson of the highest decision-making body in each organisation. Members: data cover all members of the highest decision-making bodies in each organisation (i.e. chairperson, non-executive directors, senior executives and employee representatives, where relevant). CEO: Chief Executive Officer or equivalent position. Executives: all executive members (if any) of the highest decision-making body and all members of the highest executive committee/board with responsibility for day-to-day management of the organisation. Non-executives: data cover non-executive directors in the highest decision-making body and in the highest executive committee/board (if any) in each organisation. Employee representatives participating in the highest decision-making body are included in the count of non-executive members. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Bodies with advisory or counselling role are not included. Any individual that is a member of both the highest decision-making body and the highest executive committee/board is counted only once.
8.1.1.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
8.1.1.4. Time coverage	WMID data on media were first collected in 2014 (for 34 countries). The geographic coverage of the database has been expanded through time. For Montenegro, the time series starts in 2015 and for Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Kosovo, it starts in 2018.
8.1.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in May/June.
8.1.1.6. Completeness	Data are mostly complete.
8.1.1.7. Accuracy	2017 data for members and non-executives in one organisation in Romania refer to 2016 as the highest decision-making body was dismissed and not appointed at the time of data collection. Apart from this point, data can be considered fully accurate.
8.1.1.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
8.1.1.9. Comparability across countries	The organisational structure of public broadcasters varies among (and within) countries. Not all organisations have an established management board in which case senior executives are counted instead. Therefore, the number of executives may vary significantly among the different organisations. In addition, the number of organisations per country is not the same. Apart from these points, data are comparable between countries.

8.1.1.10. Comparability over time	Occasionally, there are changes in the number of organisations covered by country i.e. due to merger of organisations, or privatisation of nationally owned broadcaster organisations. In Hungary, the four public media services merged into a single public broadcaster in July 2015. The changes were reflected in 2016 WMID data.
8.1.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
8.1.1.12. Data revision	Following clarifications and replies from contact persons, revisions were made: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2016: 2014 and 2015 data revised for Czechia, Luxembourg, and Finland. • 2017: data for Germany (2015 and 2016) and Luxembourg (2016) were revised. • 2018: 2017 data revised for Belgium, Ireland, Cyprus, Romania, Finland, United Kingdom, and Iceland. For Germany, data for periods 2014-2017 were revised. • 2020: 2019 data revised for members in Spain.
8.1.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact person in relevant organisations.
8.1.1.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Media: public broadcasters

8.1.2. Media regulatory authorities

8.1.2.1. Organisations covered	Independent national regulatory authorities who supervise media and broadcasting activities to ensure compliance with national and European rules. Independent organisations are understood as entities with their own statutes, or whose establishment, powers, and rules of procedure are regulated by a specific law. Branches or departments of ministries, organisations regulating only areas that are not strictly related to media and broadcasting activities (e.g. telecommunications or market regulation), organisations taking up only administrative functions (e.g. handling of complaints, or registration of licences), and self-regulatory organisations comprised solely of representatives of media organisations (e.g. journalists' unions) are excluded. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In Belgium, there are no independent media regulatory authorities at the national level. The highest sub-national (regional) organisations are covered instead.
8.1.2.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: chairperson of the highest decision-making body. • Members of the highest decision-making body (count includes the president). In cases where no decision-making body is present, the highest in hierarchy executive and senior executives are counted instead. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Separate management bodies are not included.
8.1.2.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
8.1.2.4. Time coverage	WMID data on media were first collected in 2014 (for 34 countries). The geographic coverage of the database has been expanded through time. For Montenegro, the time series starts in 2015. For Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Kosovo, the time series starts in 2018.
8.1.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in May/June.
8.1.2.6. Completeness	Data are mostly complete.
8.1.2.7. Accuracy	2019 data for the organisation in Netherlands refers to 2018 as the body was suspended and not appointed at the time of data collection. Apart from this point, data can be considered fully accurate.
8.1.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.

8.1.2.9. Comparability across countries	The scope and structure of media regulatory authorities differ among countries. In some countries, there is a single regulatory authority in charge of broadcasting, telecommunications and market regulation, while in others there are separate authorities for each area. In these cases, only the authority strictly connected to broadcasting is covered. No distinction is made between authorities regulating public and/or private broadcasters. In terms of structure, some authorities are comprised only by a decision-making council (usually termed the Media Council), while others have a full organisational structure. In the latter case, the highest decision-making body is taken into account and where there is no such body then the senior executives are counted. Apart from these points, data are comparable between countries.
8.1.2.10. Comparability over time	Occasionally, the organisations to be covered in each country may vary i.e. due to changes in the regulatory framework at the national or European level. In Liechtenstein, some of the media supervisory and regulatory functions were transferred from the government to the Office for Communication in 2017. The organisation was therefore added to the WMID data collection from 2017 onwards.
8.1.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
8.1.2.12. Data revision	In 2018, following a review of the organisations to be covered, data for Estonia, Spain, and Slovenia were revised for periods 2014-2017 and for Liechtenstein, 2017 data were revised to include the new organisation.
8.1.2.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact person in relevant organisations.
8.1.2.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Media: regulatory authorities

9. Science and research

9.1. Research funding organisations

9.1.2.1. Organisations covered	Self-governed funding organisations allocating national public funds to research organisations, programmes or projects in the countries are covered. In cases where there is no research funding organisation fulfilling these criteria, the Ministry responsible for allocating the funds is covered and the decision-makers are identified on a case-by-case basis due to inherent differences (see notes). NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • There are no self-governed research funding organisations in Italy (IT), Romania (RO), Montenegro (ME), North Macedonia (MK), Serbia (RS), Bosnia and Herzegovina (BA), Kosovo (XK) and Liechtenstein (LI). In these cases, the ministry responsible for research funding is covered, and decision-makers are defined on a case-by-case basis: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • RO, ME, MK, RS, and BA: data cover the head and members of the evaluating body (often referred as Evaluation Committee) set up to assess the projects submitted in the last open call. • IT: the ministry responsible for allocating funding organises multiple small evaluation committees (e.g. in 2018 there were 25 committees comprising an average of 5.5 people). Counting only the last committee selected in the year (as for other countries without an independent research funding organisation) would result in recording only a small group with a potentially unrepresentative composition. Therefore, data cover presidents and members of all evaluation committees involved in assessing the latest call. • XK: the ministry organises multiple councils that evaluate the projects for each scientific field and report findings to the Scientific Council of the ministry. WMID data cover the Scientific Council which is the body that makes the final decisions about the allocation of funding. • LI: there is no competitive project funding managed at the national level. Instead, the government includes in the annual budget contributions for research purposes to a number of organisations. Thus, data cover the government unit (i.e. the head and persons working in the unit) in charge of preparing the budget for research. • Data exclude organisations allocating only international (e.g. EU), regional, or private funds; funding only individuals/individual costs (e.g. scholarships, salaries, training, etc.); or whose funds can only be allocated to certain regions or institutions. • Data include public foundations, established with a government endowment (i.e. not from national state budget).
9.1.2.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: chairperson of the highest decision-making body. • Members: members of the highest decision-making body (count includes the president). NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The highest decision-making body is identified from the statutes or equivalent document (e.g. charter) of the organisations covered. Due to the diversity of organisational types and governance structures the type of decision-making body covered varies considerably. Bodies covered include boards of directors, boards of trustees, councils, management boards, presidiums, steering committees, scientific boards or committees and supervisory boards. • Only members with voting rights are included in the counting.
9.1.2.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.

9.1.2.4. Time coverage	WMID data on research funding organisations were first collected in March 2017 for the 27 EU Member States and United Kingdom. The geographic coverage has been expanded to align with other WMID data, so data were collected in June-November 2018 for the countries listed below only: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Montenegro • North Macedonia • Albania • Serbia • Turkey • Bosnia and Herzegovina • Kosovo • Iceland • Liechtenstein • Norway
9.1.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically in February and March.
9.1.2.6. Completeness	2017 data for Italy and Romania not available.
9.1.2.7. Accuracy	For the countries for which the ministry is covered, generally the non-permanent evaluating body that assessed the projects of the latest open call is covered. In case the non-permanent evaluating body is not active during the reference year (i.e. because no open calls were launched), data from the last year the body was active is used. In 2020, no response received from IT, RO, ME, MK, RS, and XK due to disruptions caused by COVID-19 hence 2019 data were used. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully accurate.
9.1.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
9.1.2.9. Comparability across countries	The research and development systems vary across countries. In some countries, there is a single funding organisation responsible for the allocation of funds, in others, this role is split between different organisations, whilst in some other cases there is no independent funding organisation and a ministry is responsible for the allocation of funds. The scope and extent to which research funding organisations can decide on the distribution of funds between research fields also varies. The organisational structures of research funding organisations differ, both within and between countries. The ministry responsible for allocating funding in Italy organises multiple small evaluation committees. Counting only the last committee selected in the year (as for other countries without an independent research funding organisation) would result in recording only a small group with a potentially unrepresentative composition. Thus, data for Italy cover presidents and members of all evaluation committees that assessed the projects of the last open call. Apart from these points, data are fully comparable between countries.
9.1.2.10. Comparability over time	In the case of research funding organisations, data are generally comparable. However, there are occasional changes in the number of organisations covered by country i.e. due to changes in the research and development system in the country. Following changes in the research development system, the number of organisations covered in WMID data changed for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • United Kingdom: coverage dropped from 9 to 1 in 2018 as the newly established umbrella organisation acts as the main research funding institution. It should be noted that changes in the organisations covered may have an impact on the figures at the national level, particularly in countries where a single or a small number of organisations are covered.
9.1.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no other dataset compiling the number of women and men in decision-making positions over time.

9.1.2.12. Data revision	After clarifications and data received from contacts, the following revisions were made: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2018: 2017 data revised to include one more organisation in Spain (coverage up from 2 to 3) and two more in United Kingdom (up from 7 to 9). Also, 2017 data recorded for Italy and Romania were changed to not available following methodological developments. • 2019: 2018 data for Italy and Kosovo were added. • 2020: 2019 data for members in France were revised.
9.1.2.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact person in relevant organisations.
9.1.2.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Research funding organisations

9.2. National academies of science

9.2.2.1. Organisations covered	Officially identified national (or royal) academies of sciences operating at the national level and focusing on at least one of the 2007 FOS level 2 scientific fields. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • National/royal academies focusing only on a single sub-field of the FOS level 2 scientific fields are excluded because they are considered to be too specialised to have an impact within the domain as a whole. • In case of no academies operating at the national level, officially recognised academies acting at the regional or equivalent level are included instead. The only case in the current dataset is Belgium where academies operate within the three language communities.
9.2.2.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: chairperson of the highest decision-making body. • Members: members of the highest decision-making body (count includes the president). NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The highest decision-making body is identified from the statutes or equivalent document (e.g. charter) of the organisations covered. Due to the diversity of governance structures the type of decision-making body covered varies considerably. Bodies covered include, for example, boards of directors, councils, senates, directorates, presidiums, steering committees, trustee boards etc. However, in cases that statutes identify the plenum (body comprising of all members of the academy) as the academy's highest decision-making body, then the second in hierarchy body is covered. • Only members with voting rights are included in the counting.
9.2.2.3. Reference area	There are no national academies of science in Iceland and Liechtenstein. Thus, WMID data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and Norway.
9.2.2.4. Time coverage	WMID data on national academies of science were first collected in March 2017 for the 27 EU Member States and United Kingdom only. The geographic coverage has been expanded to align with other WMID data, so for the countries listed below the time series starts in 2019: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Montenegro • North Macedonia • Albania • Serbia • Turkey • Bosnia and Herzegovina • Kosovo • Norway
9.2.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on a biennial basis, typically in February/March.
9.2.2.6. Completeness	2017 and 2019 data for members in one organisation in France not available. 2019 data for the organisation in Albania not available (all positions vacant at the time of data collection). Apart from these points, data are complete.
9.2.2.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.

9.2.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.
9.2.2.9. Comparability across countries	The national academies are organised differently among countries. In some countries, there is a single national academy covering all scientific fields, whilst in other cases, this role is split between different organisations. The organisational structures of national academies also differ, both within and between countries. Apart from these points, data are fully comparable between countries.
9.2.2.10. Comparability over time	Changes in the organisations covered in each country (e.g. in case a new academy is established) are unlikely thus, the comparability of data through time is considered good.
9.2.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
9.2.2.12. Data revision	None.
9.2.2.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact person in relevant organisations.

10. Sports

10.1. Sports organisations at European level

10.1.1. European Sports Confederations

10.1.1.1. Organisations covered	European Confederation acting as the governing body of an Olympic sport at the European level. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Not all Olympic sports have a representative European Confederation. • Organisations representing the discipline/branch of an Olympic sport are excluded unless there is no organisation representing the sport as a whole. • Organisations representing non-Olympic sports are excluded.

NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In cases where the head of the highest decision-making body and the head of the daily executive body are the same person, he/she is counted in both positions. • If there is no separate executive head position, the president is counted instead.
10.1.1.3. Reference area	Not applicable.
10.1.1.4. Time coverage	WMID data on European sports confederations were first collected in May 2019.
10.1.1.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically between September and December.
10.1.1.6. Completeness	Data are complete.
10.1.1.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
10.1.1.8. Sampling error	Data cover the recognised European Confederations representing an Olympic sport. This implies data might not be fully representative of the whole spectrum of confederations of sports, but rather it presents the situation in organisations with impact at the EU level for Olympic sports.
10.1.1.9. Comparability across countries	Not applicable.
10.1.1.10. Comparability over time	Data are comparable over time.
10.1.1.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
10.1.1.12. Data revision	2019 data on members for the European Volleyball Confederation (CEV) were revised in 2020.
10.1.1.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact person in relevant organisations.
10.1.1.14. Mapping tables	None.

10.2. Sports organisations at national level

10.2.1. National Olympic Committees (NOCs)

10.2.1.1. Organisations covered	The National Olympic Committee (NOC) recognised by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) for each country. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Only NOCs recognised by the IOC are covered. Organisations with suspended recognition are not taken into account.
10.2.1.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> President of the highest decision-making body. Vice-president: deputy/deputies of the president of the highest decision-making body. 10.2.2. National ministries dealing with sports

10.2.2.1. Organisations covered	Sports ministries or departments of national governments with responsibility for sports. Note that the names of the ministries may vary between countries.
10.2.2.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Senior ministers: members of the government in ministries with competences in sports who have a seat on the cabinet or council of ministers. • Junior ministers: members of the government in ministries with competences in sports who do not have a seat on the cabinet. • Members of the government or political executive: sum of senior and junior ministers. • Level 1 administrators: highest level of administrative (non-political) positions in ministries with competences in sports. • Level 2 administrators: second level of administrative (non-political) positions in ministries with competences in sports. • Senior administrators: sum of level 1 and level 2 administrators.
10.2.2.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
10.2.2.4. Time coverage	Data were first collected in 2019 for the 38 countries covered in WMID database.
10.2.2.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically between September and December.
10.2.2.6. Completeness	2019 and 2020 data for Level 1 and 2 administrators in Belgium are partially available (refer to Flemish community only). Apart from this point, data are complete.
10.2.2.7. Accuracy	Data for some countries refer to situation in an earlier period, as the most up-to-date information was not available. See details below: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2019: data for Level 1 and 2 administrators in CZ, LU, PL, BA, NO and Level 2 in HR refer to the situation at the end of 2018. Also, Levels 1 & 2 data for FR refer to end of 2017. • 2020: data for Level 1 and 2 administrators in IT, PL, SK, and Level 2 in TR refer to 2019 (no response). Data refer to situation at the end of 2018 for FR and end of 2019 for CZ, LU, and NO. In case the ministry deals with multiple policy areas, only administrators dealing with the ministry administration and sports is covered. For the cases below, data broken down by department is not available thus the whole ministry is covered instead: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2020: Level 1 and 2 administrators in FR, PT, and SE and Level 2 in EL, MT, NL, SK, and FI. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully accurate.
10.2.2.8. Sampling error	Not applicable.

10.2.2.9. Comparability across countries	The major difference between countries is that in some countries the concept of government refers only to the cabinet (senior ministers) whilst in others the concept is wider and includes junior ministers. Data are broken down by level of seniority so that this difference can be taken into account. The different political and institutional systems implemented across countries also results in functions corresponding to junior ministers to differ from a country to another. Likewise, for administrative positions, there are differences in national administrative systems (for example, level 1 and level 2 administrators correspond to different functions from a country to another and also between ministries within a country). Fixing 'level 1' to refer to the first level below the political positions can result in big differences between countries where only the minister is counted as political and others where two or more tiers are considered as such. This is visible for instance in the high differences in the average number of administrators covered by country. Depending on the institutional organisation in the country, this difference may be exacerbated further at the next level (level 2). Furthermore, in Belgium there is no ministry dealing with sports at the national government level and the responsibility lies with the community (i.e. regional) ministries. Thus, WMID data cover the rounded average number of senior and junior (if applicable) ministers as well as Level 1 and Level 2 administrators across the three community ministries in order to avoid undue weight on the EU level figure. Apart from these points, data are comparable between countries.
10.2.2.10. Comparability over time	Data are comparable over time.
10.2.2.11. Coherence with other datasets	There is no dataset compiling the number of women and men in relevant decision-making positions over time.
10.2.2.12. Data revision	None.

10.2.3. National sports federations (top ten most funded sports)

10.2.3.1. Organisations covered	Federations of the top ten Olympic sports granted the highest public funding during the latest allocation of funds. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In some cases, the ministry with responsibility for sports allocates the public funding whilst in others it is channelled through an external organisation. Data takes into account both kinds of funding allocation models. • Federations representing a discipline/branch of an Olympic sport are excluded, unless there is no organisation representing the sport as a whole. • Umbrella organisations (such as National Olympic Committees, confederations of sports) receiving public funding are excluded. • In Belgium, there are no federations acting as the governing body of sport at the national level. In this case, 10 regional federations for each linguistic community (acting as the regional governing body for sports) are covered and data show the rounded average for each position to avoid undue weight. Note that for all other countries, data show aggregated figures for each position.

10.2.3.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President of the highest decision-making body. • Vice-president: deputy/deputies of the president of the highest decision-making body. • Members of the highest decision-making body (count includes the president). • Executive head, usually referred to as either the Secretary General or Managing Director. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The president of the highest decision-making body is included in the members count. • In cases where the head of the highest decision-making body and the head of the daily executive body are the same person, he/she is counted in both positions. • If there is no separate executive head position, the president is counted instead. • In cases where there are more than one deputy/vice-presidents, all are counted.
10.2.3.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States, United Kingdom, five EU candidates, two potential candidates and the three EEA countries.
10.2.3.4. Time coverage	WMID data on national sports federations based on a sample of top ten most funded sports were first collected between September and October 2018.
10.2.3.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data are collected on an annual basis, typically between September and December.
10.2.3.6. Completeness	At the country level, data do not cover Germany as the list of top ten most funded sports was not provided in any of the reference years. 2018-2020 data for Turkey covers 8 federations (instead of 10) due to incomplete list provided by contact. 2019 and 2020 data for Ireland covers 9 federations as the list of most funded sports did not include any other Olympic sport/discipline. At the level of organisation, data were not available for one or more positions in the following cases: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2018: BE, AT, ME, MK, AL, and XK. • 2019: BE, LT, MT, ME, MK, and AL. • 2020: BE, MT, ME, MK, AL and BA.
10.2.3.7. Accuracy	When an updated sample is not provided by contact the latest available list is used. This was the case for the following countries and years: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2019: data cover the same sample as in 2018 for ES, FR, LU, ME, MK, and TR. • 2020: data cover the same sample as in 2019 for BE (French speaking community), CZ, HR, NL, PT, UK, AL, RS, and XK and the same as in 2018 for FR, MK, and TR. Apart from these points, data can be considered fully accurate.
10.2.3.8. Sampling error	Data cover only federations of the top ten most funded Olympic sports that fulfil the selection criteria i.e. top ten Olympic sports granted the highest funding during the latest allocation of public funds. This implies data might not be fully representative of the whole spectrum of sports federations in each country, but rather it presents the situation in federations of sports granted the most public funding at national level.
10.2.3.9. Comparability across countries	The major difference is that regional federations act as the governing bodies of sports in Belgium compared to national organisations in all other countries. Therefore, the sample for Belgium covers 30 regional federations (10 per linguistic community) compared to 10 national federations in all other cases. Data for Belgium are disseminated as rounded averages for each position in order to increase the comparability with other countries. Apart from this point, data are comparable between countries.
10.2.3.10. Comparability over time	Comparability of data over time if affected by regular update of the organisations covered taking into the latest allocation of public funds. Apart from this point, data are comparable over time.
10.2.3.11. Coherence with other datasets	WMID dataset on federations of top ten most popular sports contains data on the number of women and men in decision-making positions.

10.2.3.12. Data revision	Following the clarifications received during 2019 data collection, 2018 data for the following positions revised for the specified number of organisations in each country: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President: data revised for one organisation in Albania. • Members: data revised for Belgium (2 organisations), Ireland (1), Greece (1), Italy (4), Netherlands (2), Poland (5), Romania (1), and Iceland (1); and • Executive head: data revised for Italy (1 organisation), Netherlands (2), Austria (1), and Kosovo (1).
10.2.3.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact person in relevant organisations.
10.2.3.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • National sports federations (most funded)

10.2.4.2. Positions covered	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • President of the highest decision-making body (those without a vote are not counted). • Vice-president: deputy/deputies of the president of the highest decision-making body. • Members of the highest decision-making body (count includes the president). • Executive head, usually referred to as either the Secretary General or Managing Director. NB: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The president of the highest decision-making body is included in the members count. • In cases where the head of the highest decision-making body and the head of the daily executive body are the same person, he/she is counted in both positions. • If there is no separate executive head position, the president is counted instead. • In cases where there are more than one deputy/vice-presidents, all are counted.
10.2.4.3. Reference area	Data are collected for the 27 EU Member States and United Kingdom only.
10.2.4.4. Time coverage	WMID data on national sports federations based on a sample of top ten most popular sports were first collected in 2015. Data for the same sample was updated in 2018 between September – October.
10.2.4.5. Frequency of data collection and reference period	Data first collected in 2015 and are collected on an annual basis since 2018, typically between September and December.
10.2.4.6. Completeness	Data are complete except for the following cases: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2015 data for members not available in Bulgaria (1 organisation), Greece (1), Spain (2), Croatia (2), and Malta (2). • 2018 and 2019 data not available for the executive head of one organisation in Portugal.
10.2.4.7. Accuracy	Data can be considered fully accurate.
10.2.4.8. Sampling error	Data cover only the national sport federations of the top ten most popular sports sample drawn in 2015. The popularity of the sports was measured using national statistics (only available for DK, DE, AT, and LT), desk research (using phrases such as ‘most popular sports’ ‘national sporting statistics’, ‘popular sports’, and ‘top 10 sports’) for each country, and cross-checking the lists found in various sources. This implies data might not be fully representative of the whole spectrum of national sport federations in each country, but rather it presents the situation in sport federations identified as the most popular.
10.2.4.9. Comparability across countries	Data are comparable between countries.

10.2.4.10. Comparability over time	Comparability over time may be affected by stricter methodological guidelines applied during the 2018 update to align with other WMID topics: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Highest decision-making body: defined as the governing body of the federation, usually led by the president/chairman of the organisation, which meets on a regular basis (i.e. more than annually) and has decision-making competences. This led to coverage of a different decision-making body for 11 cases (including one federation in each in MT, BE, CY, two in DE, NL, and four in FR) compared to the 2015 data collection. • Members: of the highest decision-making body include only those with full voting rights; members without voting rights (i.e. those with advisory role, alternates, honorary) are not counted. The principle was not applied fully in 2015 data collection thus non-voting members were counted in some cases. These changes may have had an impact on figures at the national level.
10.2.4.11. Coherence with other datasets	WMID dataset on federations of top ten most funded sports contains data on the number of women and men in decision-making positions.
10.2.4.12. Data revision	Following the clarifications received during 2019 data collection, 2018 data revised for the following positions in the specified number of organisations in each country: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Members: data revised for Greece (1 organisation), Italy (4), Poland (1), and Romania (1). • Executive head: data revised for Italy (1 organisation), Netherlands (1), and Austria (1).
10.2.4.13. Data collection	Direct collection of data from official websites and contact person in relevant organisations.
10.2.4.14. Mapping tables	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • National sports federations (most popular)

Annex: WMID Mapping tables

The methodology for the collection of data on women and men in decision-making (WMID) defines the coverage of each topic. However, organisational structures vary between countries so there may be one or more entities covered. Moreover, decision-making positions are not directly comparable in terms of their scope of competence and the names applied to these positions vary so that in some cases positions with similar names are quite different.

The mapping tables list the organisations and/or positions covered by the WMID data for selected topics. For topics not covered in the mapping tables, the data tables generally include the names of the organisations covered.
